Girl Scouts Have Annual Recognition Dinner

Hospital Gets $18,745.

Although the real concerted campaign to raise $600,000 as the local share of the cost of adding another 50-bed wing to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital does not start until July, the building fund is growing steadily thanks to advance contributions from public spirited firms and individuals, it was announced today by Harold Jones, administrator of the hospital.

At a meeting of the finance committee of the building committee, held at the hospital Monday, contributions totaling $18,745 were reported in addition to gifts already received and banked.

Contributions reported yesterday included:

Bell City Gin, $250.; F. S. Hunter Farms, $400.; Scott County Milling Co., $3,000.; Nathan Yoffie, $250.; Dr. Joseph Blanton, $1,000; L. R. Bowman, $1,000.; Mitchell Insurance Agcy., $500.; S. F. The finance committee is composed of Val Sharp and Kenneth Smitten as co-chairmen with these members: Kendall Sikes, Robert Matthews, Earl Jarvis, Jim Bogle, Goerge Story, Robert Mitchell and William Gemeinhardt.

The committee points out that it is not necessary to wait until the campaign is actually started but those interested and willing to help in raising the local share may make their contributions at any time.

Over 750 Are At Affair

Few people really realize just how far-reaching or how many adults give their time and energy to the many Girl Scout programs conducted in and around Sikeston for the girls but the annual recognition dinner, such as was held Monday night, brings the facts fully in to view.

More than 750 men and women, guests and Girl Scouts, were at the Armory when Mrs. Joel Montgomery, as mistress of ceremonies called on the Rev. F. Edward Watson, pastor of Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church for the invocation that opened the program.

Mrs. Montgomery introduced Mrs. Paul Fisher, Neighborhood chairman for Brownie Troops who, in turn, called up the leaders of the ten Brownie Troops represented and each leader was introduced to the crowd and presented with a handsome silver compote.

Following Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Maurice Stauffer, Neighborhood chairman for Juniors, Cadettes and Senior Scouts was introduced.

She called up the leaders of the Junior, Cadette and Senior troops present and each leader received the silver compote.

A high light of the evening's program was the presentation of the Girl Scout chorus, a group of 15 Senior Scouts, who, under the direction of Mrs. Joe Fox, sang several selections.

Mrs. L. M. Standley, general chairman for the event took over and presented Girl Scout statuettes to Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Stauffer.

Mrs. Standley spent some time in extending the thanks of the Girl Scouts to the man who had helped during the past year to make the Girl Scout program successful.

Singled out for special mention were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Bird for the use of land as a camp site; the schools and churches; C. L. Blanton, Jr., Leo Schade and Robert E. Yorke of the Daily Standard, Dick Watkins and Mike Shain of the radio station; city manager Raymert Miller, Jim Stephenson of REA, Mrs. Oren Dahl, Mrs. Opal Puckett, Mrs. Dempsey Gardner and Mrs. John Cowell.

But, she emphasized, the thanks of the Girl Scouts were due largely to the parents of the girls and the troop leaders.

Three male Girl Scouts were introduced — Bill Huff, Bill Werneck and F. X. Schumacher who were each presented with a special Girl Scout lapel button by a Senior Girl Scout.

Music throughout the evening was played by Daniel Malone.

Brownie Troops represented at the meeting were:

State Senate Group Argues Public Accomodations Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A Senate committee Monday night heard both proponents and opponents of a broad public accommodations bill.

No action was taken on the measure, pending an amendment.

Introduced by Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis, the bill would prohibit discrimination in any public business. It would extend to more kinds of business than the 1964 federal civil rights act.

McNeal said he is preparing an amendment to place violations under the jurisdiction of the State Commission on Human rights. When the bill was introduced early in the session, McNeal said he did not feel the commission would receive the necessary funds to implement the measure.

It now appears it would, he said.

He introduced spokesmen for several organizations supporting the bill. Represented were the Missouri League of Women Voters, Missouri Labor Council, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Missouri Council of Churches, St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, NAACP, the Commission on Human Rights of the Roman Cathilic Archdiocese of St. Louis and the St. Louis County Commission on Human Relations.

The Rev. Edward J. O'Donnell, Wellston, of the St. Louis Archdiocese, said the law should represent the will of the people of Missouri — not simply compliance with the federal civil rights act.

Mrs. Paul Schreiber, St. Louis, speaking for the League of Women Voters, said 31 states now have public accomodations laws.

Opponents hammered away with the claim the bill would interfere with property rights. Depriving businessmen of the right to serve or sell to whom they choose is a violation of constitutional rights, they said.

Allen O. Kern, St. Louis, chairman of the States Rights party of Missouri, said the effect of the bill would be involuntary servitude and would lead to a totalitarian dictatorship.

"It is one-sided, leftist legisation," Kern said.

Another opponent, the Rev. Bill Barlow, representing the St. Louis Citizens Council, said "The moral right in this question is on the side of segregation."

"Property owner rights are as basic as human rights," he said, "and one is no good without the other."

The committee also heard testimony on a bill which would prohibit opened liquor or beer bottles in a motor vehicle. Action was deferred.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, introduced the measure to make it a misdemeanor and a 3-point violation on a driver's record to carry opened alcoholic beverage containers.

He said it would be a strong law prohibiting opened containers even if locked in the trunk or suitcase.

Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, spoke in support of the measure. He said it is designed to be a part of the overall safety effort.

The question of search and seizure by law enforcement officials, often debated in the Missouri Legislature, was discussed in relation to Blackwell's bill.

A move to free some state residents from double library taxes apparently has fizzled in the House.

RIGHT TO WORK STATES LEAD IN ECONOMIC PROGRESS

Newest statistics compiled and published by the U. S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics show Right to Work states continuing to lead the nation in the rate of improvement in industrial wages and the creation of new industrial jobs, as well as other pocket-book factors. It shows the compulsory unionism ("union shop") states lagging in comparison.

A -- Right to Work states were the top three in the nation in the rate of new jobs created in business and industry -- (1) Nevada, (2) Arizona, (3) Florida. Two other Right to Work states -- Utah and Arkansas -- were among the first 10 in this primary measurement of industrial and economic progress.

The average rate of improvement in new jobs created in the 10 year period showed the 10 Right to Work states leading the 31 non-Right to Work states 23.2% to 9.9%. (Wyoming, which enacted the law in 1963, not counted)

B -- Three of the top five, and seven of the top 10 states in the nation in rate of gain in hourly wage rates in manufacturing jobs were Right to Work states. North Dakota was 2nd in the nation in this category, Florida was 3rd, Iowa 4th, Utah 6th, Alabama 7th, South Dakota 8th, Nevada 10th.

A Right to Work state, Nevada, led all the states in the union in the dollars and cents wage being paid production workers in industry -- with an average hourly rate of $3.11. In this category of dollars and cents wages paid, three Right to Work states are among the 10 highest -- Nevada, Indiana, Utah.

The fact that a few of the Right to Work states show a lower dollars-and-cents average wage rate than the national average (though catching up rapidly) is explained in the statement by the North Carolina State Development Board. The cotton, textile and other agri-industries concentrated in some Southern states offer thousands of non-skilled jobs whose pay rate, beginning relatively low, is rising swiftly with mechanization of production and training of the non-skilled and semi-skilled to broaden the base of skilled workers.

The Committee is now preparing a new brochure containing statistics on all of the accepted economic yardsticks -- comparing the Right to Work states with the compulsory unionism states.

Columnist Max Freedman writes: "The uproar in Congress over reapportionment is the visible and dramatic proof that the minority on the Supreme Court was right in its forebodings that serious problems would be created by the court's decision. With unavailing logic and legal scholarship, Justice Frankfurter (now retired) and Justice Harlan led the opposition on the court to the judicial settlement of these reapportionment problems . . . They foresaw the new problems that would arise once the court began to work in these political thickets. Other members of the court, and large sections of public opinion, began to see the wisdom of these forebodings when a majority of the justices later ruled that both branches of a state legislature must have their membership determined by population."

Women love furs, but they don't know how to care for them, a New York furrier told us. One of the common mistakes, he said, is storing or hanging furs in a plastic bag. He recommended a cloth bag and for white furs a dark cloth bag. He said carrying a handbag on the arm causes abrasions on the pelt, and stuffing pockets causes the fur to stretch out of shape. He added that perfume and cologne should never be sprayed directly on furs and cleaning fluids and moth sprays can discolor them. He also said if furs are worn in wet weather they should be allowed to dry naturally and then shaken vigorously to restore their luster.

According to Tacitus, robbery, murder and outrage are often dignified by the false name of government.

The favor of the multitude is seldom acquired by honest and lawful means, said Immanuel Kant.

Samuel Johnson once observed that law is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public.

Machiavelli held that it is not titles that reflect honor upon a man but men on their titles.

Goethe said that the best government is that which teaches us to govern ourselves.

John Stuart Mill once said that the liberty of the individual does not permit making himself a nuisance to others.

Wrote Alexander Hamilton in The Federalist: "Cabal, intrigue and corruption, deadly adversaries of republican government, might naturally be expected to make their approaches from more than one quarter, but chiefly from the desire of foreign powers to gain an improper ascendant in our councils."

Rousseau believed that good laws lead to the making of better ones and that bad laws bring about worse.

GOOD NEWS

The consumers of the country got some good news from Washington the other day. It took the form of a report that the Administration has tentatively decided to request the repeal of a number of the federal retail excise taxes next year.

These levies -- which are precisely the same as sales taxes -- apply to such universally used articles as cosmetics, handbags, jewelry, fountain pens and so on. And it is an irony that most of them were passed on an emergency basis during World War II and the Korean War, and it was generally believed that they would end with those conflicts. But they are still on the books all these years later.

The apparent fact that the Administration's decision is described as tentative poses a question mark. And it is a question mark that should be eliminated. The articles involved cannot logically be classed as luxuries in our kind of society. Numbers of them are absolute necessities. As a matter of simple justice, repeal should have taken place long ago.

Washington reports say that the plan also calls for repeal of reduction of certain other special taxes. These are like the retail sales taxes which one government official described as "increasing the cost of doing business."

The reason given for the expected Administration move is that repeal would have a salutary effect on the economy at a time when it might be starting a downturn. That is important. But it is even more important that the government finally keep its word and relieve us of these "wartime emergency" burdens.

A BIG PORK BARREL

This nation's commercial transportation problems run a very wide gamut. One of them --and one which seems to be given much less attention than it deserves -- is found in the inland waterway system. Carriers on these waterways account for less than 10 per cent of the total intercity freight volume of the nation -- and nearly 90 per cent of the freight they do carry is not for the general shipping public. Instead, it consists of the traffic of companies hauling their own products.

Yet inland waterways have cost the government (that is, the taxpayers) more than $3 billion, and the bill during the current fiscal year for building, maintaining and operating the waterways will come to $200 million.

The late President Kennedy proposed that waterway users pay some of the heavy taxpayers demands that those who enjoy the benefits (of federal programs) should bear a greater share of the costs."

Legislation toward this end has been introduced in Congress. It is in no way punitive--the fuel tax would produce only about $8 million in fiscal 1965, a tiny fraction of the costs for which waterways are responsible. Yet it is opposed right down the line by waterway partisans who want to continue to enjoy huge taxpayer subsidies without contributing even a most modest amount to help pay for the facilities they use.

Who should be interested in this problem? Answer: Every taxpayer --YOU.

INVENTIONS AND DISCOVERIES

Man's earliest measurements of time were based on the movements of the sun -- as with the simple Egyptian gnomon, dating to 1500 B. C., from which the solar quadrant developed. Numerous variations of water clock and sand glass preceded Huygens' invention of the pendulum clock in 1657. This portable ivory sun - dial of 1599 incorporates a magnetic needle, the hours indicated by the shadow of the string.

WHO NEEDS A SLIDE RULE FOR SIMPLE ARITHMETIC?

The very people responsible for what unemployment there is, try to duck the blame by clouding the case with big words, academic theories, falsehoods.

Employment comes from making goods and providing services that people want, at a cost people can afford.

Unemployment comes when the costs get so high that too few people can afford to buy.

High costs come from

1. Businessmen who won't keep their plants modern enough to help hold costs down.

2. Workers who demand more money without producing more, to earn it.

3. Taxes so high they restrict business (and individuals) and do not leave enough for managers to replace old high-cost equipment.

If government, labor and business joined forces, they could cure unemployment fast and forever.

Footnote: Employment is extremely high in this country. Unemployment is not as serious as some politicians would have you believe. We are actually importing sugar cane cutters from Barbados, secretaries from England, etc.

But any unemployment is hurtful and except for the handicapped, needless.

A NEW SIN

A few days ago, a Roman Catholic priest in Chicago called moving traffic violations "one of the new sins that have arisen since Moses received the Ten Commandments."

The Reverend John S. Banahan told a conclave of traffic judges, prosecutors and clergymen that he wished his parishioners would include their "traffic sins" in their confessions.

This is not a bad idea. It might encourage more drivers to stay alive long enough at least to get to church. They are hardly doing so now. The National Safety Council's latest semi-annual traffic accident data shows a 12 percent increase in the national traffic accident death rate. There were 21,280 victims in the first half of this year - 2,240 more than last year, and a new all time high, following the 1963 all time high, following the 1962 all time high, following the 1961 . . . and so on, ad nauseam.

It is not odd that in this country the people choose the automobile as their favorite weapon of aggression? Maybe the reformers who want to limit gun sales are shooting at the wrong target!

For ourselves, we would rather not limit anything that doesn't need limiting. But we can only agree with the insurance people who are calling for a more positive and intelligent method of driver qualification.

This plea was put in temperate and sensible language by Kemper Insurance in a recent "Call To Action" addressed to press and public. Pointing to the surprising frequency of accidents involving drinkers and young people, Kemper made the reasonable suggestion that there are some causes of accidents that merit immediate public consideration to be followed by whatever action seems necessary.

Something should certainly be done about the little - regarded fact that 30 percent of the drivers involved in accidents are in the "under-25" age group, which comprises only 17.7 percent of all drivers.

Something should certainly be done about the even less regarded fact that autopsies show alcohol in 48 percent to 60 percent (depending on the state) of all driver fatalities.

It is not inconceivable that irresponsible drivers may yet drive the rest of us off the road altogether - by economic pressure!

BANK ON FREEDOM

Over a relatively brief period of years, American banking has gone through a steady and meaningful evolution -- an evolution, in fact, which would seem actually revolutionary to the bankers and the bankers' customers at turn -of-the century times.

The upshot of this is what is called "full service" banking. It is precisely what the term implies. The "full service" bank provides the usual checking and savings accounts. Then it offers loans at low rates for practically any legitimate purpose -- home loans, auto loans, personal loans, business loans, and so on down a lengthly list. It recognizes -- as do the basic laws under which it operates -- that the intelligent use of credit keeps the wheels of industry and business turning and serves an essential need of American enterprise and the American family, which in turn compounds employment, production and earnings.

The success of "full service" banking is a matter of record. It has totally justified its existence. At the same time, its ability to fully meet the needs of the nation and the community is threatened by proposed laws which would impose limitations, some arbitrary and narrow, on its services. As an example, legislation would be applied to matters which should be determined and reconsidered from time to time by the bank supervisory agencies.

At the same time, most authorities agree that there is a need for a very different kind of legislation -- legislation that would modernize the lending authority of national banks and provide them with greater flexibility in meeting requests for loans. As an example here, there would be sound and moderate liberalization of the terms on which the banks concerned can make loans on forest tracts and on residential real estate.

The ability and will of the modern bank to serve every practical need have been proven. Given the freedom to operate under equitable legislation and regulation, they will move with flexibility and imagination to meet the changing financial needs of this growing nation.

DOCTOR, ARE YOU SURE?

The physical differences between the male and the female are much less pronounced in human beings than they are in birds and bees and animals, a Philadelphia anthropologist has concluded.

Perhaps one reason for this is that lady bees and birds may not wear slacks and crop their hair or feathers close and otherwise behave so much like gentlemen bees and birds.

And maybe boy bees and birds don't wear Beatle hairdos or featherdos which might tend to make them look like girl bees and birds, if girl bees and birds crop their hair or feathers.

Nevertheless, and without taking a thing away from the anthropological skills of the Philadelphia doctor, a lot of earnest girl watchers -- human girl watchers, that is -- are going to be surprised at what he says.

They are going to believe that he either needs new glasses or that he just hasn't been paying attention. -- P. J.

1925 FLORIDA BOOM

In 1925, after four years in the oil business in Arkansas, I had money to spare and made the wild Florida real estate boom everyone was talking about.

Prices around Tampa were lower than at Miami, so I bought 100 acres near Tampa placing $10,000 in escrow with a bank.

I liked the ridge country and went to Sebring. There I learned of Lake Childs, a round blue - water lake eight miles across, near what promised to be a future trans-state crossroads.

A large turpentine company owned a tract which included the entire coastline of Lake Childs and 300 acres of orange trees which proved it citrus growing land. I went to the company's Jacksonville office intending to pay substantial money for an option.

They had saved this tract while disposing of their other cutover land and were more interested in securing a good developer than in taking in cash. They contacted my references, set an attractive price and gave me a free 90 day option.

Soon a storm at Tampa, followed by a hurricane at Miami, exploded the over - inflated boom. I offered to surrender my option, but the company elected to extend it although I told them I had no prospective builders.

The investors who sold me the land North of Tampa began to litigate among themselves, clouding their title. The bank returned my $10,000 escrow money.

I left the wildest real estate boom up to that time losing little more than my modest expenses.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- There's a very good unadvertised reason why the Republican leadership has decided to take a tough stand on Vietnam.

In their secret policy meeting huddles, Republican Senators and Congressmen have agreed they have President Johnson over a barrel. They figure that Vietnam was a dead end for Eisenhower, and must be for Johnson. Eventually he will have to pull out.

When that happens they can point to their own loyal, unfailing support, then accuse LBJ of backing down despite that support. This is what the Republicans regard as a "tails-I-win, heads-you-lose" political proposition.

This type of thinking has pervaded all GOP unofficial discussion of the Vietnam crisis, though it hasn't been expressed in exactly those words.

When it comes to official discussion at GOP policy meetings, Sen. Dirksen of Illinois has taken the lead, has made somewhat the same statements as he has made publicly. It's at the informal discussions that the real strategy is talked about.

Dirksen was not present at the next to the last policy meeting, having been in the hospital. This was a luncheon meeting to which most Republican Senators were invited, including non-members of the committee. Bourke Hickenlooper, Iowa, as policy chairman, presided. He launched into an endorsement of the President's get - tough policy in Vietnam and was echoed by ten or twelve other Senators. Not one disagreed, not even Jack Javits, the New York Liberal who seldom agrees with Hickenlooper on anything.

Senators Karl Mundt, S. D., and Jack Miller, Iowa, grumbled about the insults the United States has been receiving from just about every two-bit nation. One of them pointed out that the United States had suffered forty to fifty affronts, including embassy-stonings and library-burnings, during the past year. Speaker after speaker expressed outrage.

Only skeptic was Roman Hruska of Nebraska who questioned whether the bomb damage in North Vietnam was as great as the Johnson administration claimed. Hruska was suspicious of Johnson's failure to release pictures of the targets.

"I would like to see some pictures of these so-called retaliatory attacks," he huffed. "I'd like to see exactly what the damage was."

--DIRKSEN'S REWARD--

As a result of the Republicans' official support for LBJ on Vietnam, the White House is giving Sen. Dirksen the green light on patronage. On Capitol Hill it's now said: "If you want a job from Johnson, talk to Dirksen."

The urbane senator from Illinois will have the appointment of two key vacancies on the Federal Power Commission and the Federal Communications Commission. The first will affect the gas and electricity rates for millions of housewives and American industry for some years to come.

The Federal Communications Commissioner will affect the crime programs seen by the children of American housewives for some years to come.

Presumbably the Vietnamese crisis will be over in less than a year.

--THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER--

President Johnson made the painstaking efforts to patch up the feud between himself and his old Texas adversary, Sen. Ralph Yarborough. But unwittingly his eldest daughter is now jeopardizing it.

Lynda Bird Johnson went out on a blind date arranged by Mrs. Marta Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Miller. The Johnsons and the Millers are family friends.

The blind date turned out to be Ted Boone, a young lawyer with the J. W. Rouse Mortgage Bank, who had been dating Sen. Yarborough's secretary, Fran Engler.

Not until she read it in the society pages did a tearful Fran learn that her boy friend had stood her up to date the President's daughter.

--PEOPLE-AND-PEOPLE--

In Washington last week to present the national Easter Seal to President Johnson, was Lucille Ball, famed TV star, once exposed by the McCarthy Committee as a member of the Communist Executive Committee of Los Angeles. In town simultaneously was Roy Cohn, former chief counsel for McCarthy, to tell another Senate Committee how the Justice Department had been investigating him. . .As Harold Leventhal leaves his law firm to become a U. S. Court of Appeals Judge, Myer Feldman leaves the White House to join the Leventhal Law Firm. . . Young congressman Bill Green of Philadelphia, now replacing his late father, has dropped his father's trademark: green ink. It looks as if young Bill would be a better congressman than his father. .another congressman who looks better than his congressional father is Bob Sweeney of Ohio. . .President Johnson is making no commitment to appoint a Negro as head of the new Housing and Urban Department if Congress creates this new cabinet post. The late JFK said the job would go to Robert Weaver, efficient administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. This aroused southern opposition and killed the bill. If Congress sets up this new cabinet post, as it probably will, Johnson may appoint ex-Mayor Dick Dilworth of Philadelphia, or transfer efficient Tony Celebrezze, longtime mayor of Cleveland, from Secretary of HEW to the new post.

Mrs. Wagner Gives Talk To W.S.C.S. At General Meet

Mrs. Joseph Wagner used the subject, "The Life Within", when she presented the program at the general meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church, Thursday, March 4.

"Be Still My Soul," was presented by Mrs. Joe Fox, soloist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Elmer Childress.

Mrs. Wagner emphasized four main points which individuals should observe in order to affect a spiritual renewal. First, the chief cornerstone of our faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. We need Jesus as our cornerstone in this hurried world as every age has needed him.

Second, we should understand the word of God as he speaks through the Bible. The Bible made of sixty-six books is the foundation of many cultures and much literature. One should find time to understand why each book was written and by whom. Religious literature as well as the Bible should be studied.

Third, the practice of his presence through prayer and worship is essential. We should pray more, praying in love and service for others.

Fourth, we need to discipline ourselves in our daily living. This includes our personal devotion, our duty to our church, our family, our job, our community, and our world.

A solo, "Take Time to Be Holy," by Mrs. Joe Fox closed the program.

Mrs. Robert Dempster, president of the W.S.C.S., conducted the business meeting. Announcements were made at this time.

The Tanner Street Church of God will be host to the World Day of Prayer to be held at 2 p.m. with Rev. Joseph Wagner as speaker. All in the community are invited.

The first session of the study of the book of Genesis was held Sunday, March 7, at 6:30 in Fellowship Hall. Rev. W. A. Spencer was the instructor and leader of the Bible study. All are invited to be a member of the class which will be held on Sunday nights of March 14, 28 and April 4.

Rev. Joseph Wagner announced that on March 19 at 6 p.m. to March 20 at 6 p.m. the Church will enter into a 24-hour prayer vigil. The Gleaner's Room will be used as the chapel.

Rev. Wagner also announced that on March 21-25 First Methodist Church will join all other Methodist Churches of this conference in the "United Methodist Witness in Missouri." ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: In September I hired the daughter of a close friend to do secretarial work.

The girl can't spell, and she has never heard of the comma. She's a poor typist and can't handle the telephone properly. She came in late three mornings last week and took double lunch hours.

This young lady's father has done me many favors and I value his friendship. I'm sure he would be unhappy if I fired her. He believes she is brilliant and has told me repeatedly that she loves her job. Please answer in the paper. The dumbbell opens my mail. -- IN A SPOT

Dear Spot: You are paying a girl who can't spell, type or handle the phone; a girl who comes in late and takes double lunch hours -- and you call her a dumbbell?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I saw your picture in the paper. You were wearing a cap and gown and receiving an honorary degree from Morningside College in Iowa. You look like a college senior.

Several months ago my mother and I had an argument over you. She didn't believe me when I told her I had read somewhere you had had your face lifted. I showed her that picture and she said, "Maybe it's true."

Do you have the nerve to print this letter and your answer?-- ALEXANDRIA

Dear Alex: The camera can be a woman's best friend or her worst enemy. Angles, lighting, shadows, (not to mention retouching) can add or subtract 20 years. The Associated Press and the United Press International cameras were especially kind to me on that memorable day.

Face-lifting is fine for those who, for professional or purely personal reasons, feel that a youthful appearance is absolutely essential. I don't -- and when my face falls, I'm going to let it lie there.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman going with a wonderful man who lost his wife five years ago.

Mr. Marvelous wants me to marry him, but one thing is holding me back. He is critical of my children. Debbie is 5 and Randy is 7. They are energetic and highspirited.

I insist that the children be included in evening activities, particularly cultural ones. In my opinion it is more important for children to see an opera than to be in bed by 7:00 p.m. I believe, too, that children should be taken to poetry readings and lectures so they can learn how to conduct themselves in public.

Mr. Marvelous does not agree. He becomes upset when Debbie and Randy misbehave or become restless.

I love this man and the children adore him in spite of his strict attitudes, but I'm afraid he will be too hard on them. Please advise. -- V. Q. Z.

Dear V. Q. Z.: If you are smart you'll grab Mr. Marvelous -- he sounds too good to be true. Furthermore his ideas are far more sensible than yours.

Five and seven-year-olds don't belong out at night -- whether it be opera, adult lectures or poetry readings. Youngsters often misbehave because they are tired and bored. Marry this man and accept his help. Your children need it.

Mantle Hopes To Return To Center

The New york Yankees are looking for a center fielder and their new leadoff hitter hopes to win the job during his 10-game trial. Win or lose, he won't have any trouble making the club.

Mickey Mantle seconded Manager Johnny Keane's proposal Monday for a center-field runoff with Roger Maris in the Yankees' first 20 exhibition games. Then Mickey explained why he'd like to return to the position he played for 13 years before quitting it late last season because of his battered knees.

"I think center field is easier to play," Mantle said. "There is more running but it is on a straight line. You just go as far as you can wherever the ball is hit. In right field, there is more quick stopping and that's what I don't like to have to do."

Keane, who has problems 19 other major league pilots would like to have, said he intends to play Mantle in center field for 10 games, then move him to right -- with Maris switching to center.

"I want to see which way is best for the team," Keane said. "after 20 games, I believe I'll know, and the one who is in center after that time will be the center fielder."

Mantle will bat first and Maris second in exhibition games, Keane's idea being to give both sluggers more plate appearances and still rest them in the late innings.

While the Yankees were busy plotting spring strategems, the New York Mets were trying -- unsuccessfully -- to bring outfielder Joe Christopher into the fold. Christopher, a .300 hitter in 1964 and the first Met holdout since Mary Throneberry balked two years ago, met with club Vice President Johnny Murphy for four hours but stuck to his bid for a 100 per cent pay hike to $20,000.

There were optimistic reports from Pompano Beach, Fla., where Frank Howard and Willie Kirkland blasted long home runs in the Washington Senators' intra - squad game, and from Casa Grande, Ariz., where San Francisco's Jack Sanford pitched for the first time since his arm operation last July.

The Pittsburgh Pirates received word that outfield ace Roberto Clemente, recovering from malaria at his home in Puerto Rico, has lost 20 pounds but should be able to join the club at Fort Myers, Fla., later this month.

Roland M. Hoerr Jr. of St. Louis has been named state chairman to direct the 1965 National Wildlife Week observance in Missouri for the Conservation Federation of Missouri, which joins with the National Wildlife Federation in sponsoring the annual conservation education project during the period of March 14-20, and throughout 1965.

National Wildlife Week is held each year during the week in which the first day of spring occurs, and was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938. Since that time National Wildlife Week has served to focus public attention on the importance of natural resource conservation and highlights specific conservation issues.

This year the theme will be POLLUTION ABATEMENT and the slogan is "FIGHT DIRTY WATER." Positive steps which can be taken by citizens and government agencies on the local, state, and the National level to control or eliminate pollution of all kinds will be emphasized during the 1965 observance, according to Roland M. Hoerr Jr.

Individuals and organizations interested in cooperating with the Conservation Federation of Missouri in this important effort to encourage all citizens to learn what they can do to prevent and control all forms of pullution are urged to contact: Mr. Roland M. Hoerr Jr. of 389 North Mosley Road, St. Louis for further information.

"By 1980 -- only 15 years from now -- America will need 600 billion gallons of water each day," says Roland M. Hoerr Jr. "By the year 2,000, we will need a trillion gallons daily. It would take a tank car train 600,000 miles long to haul it. But unless we can find a cheap way to convert salt water to fresh, hydrologists estimate our maximum fresh water supply will be only 650 billion gallons a day."

The Missouri Wildlife Week chairman emphasized the fact that with this increasing demand for fresh water, the only answer is to re-use existing water supplies. "Some authorities say we will need to re-use our water six times by 1970," he said. "This is the reason water pollution control is the most important conservation program in America today."

"We urge every citizen of this state to put our slogan "FIGHT DIRTY WATER" into practice, "Roland M. Hoerr Jr. proclaimed. "Wastes from our homes, factories, farms, boats and numerous other sources are reducing our supplies of usable water. First we must invest more money in city and industrial water treatment plants. Second, we need more research to find better ways to treat water so that it can be re-used and re-used to meet our growing needs. Finally, we must support strong anti-pollution laws for our rivers, streams and lakes."

National Wildlife Week, sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation and its state affiliates, such as the Conservation Federation of Missouri has been held each year since 1952.

It was school as usual yesterday at Buffalo high school, even though its basketball team won the Class M Missouri high title for the second year in a row.

The hard - driving Buffalo team rolled up a 65-49 victory over undefeated California Saturday night at Columbia to repeat as the Class M champion.

There was a dinner for the victorious team Sunday night and there will be a more formal dinner affair later.

Plans are for a parade and a ceremony at the city square some time this week.

This is the third state title a Buffalo team has won in the 21 years Mallory has been superintendent. The first was in 1949.

Sisler To Put on His Own Brand

TAMPA, Fla. AP -- Dick Sisler anxiously pulled the strings last summer for a man no longer physically able to handle the job. He brought the Cincinnati Reds home tied for second, missing the pennant by one game.

As a reward for his conscientious work, Sisler was named manager of the Reds in October, a few months before the tragic death of Fred Hutchinson due to cancer.

Sisler faces the future with mixed emotions, deeply respectful to the memory of Hutchinson, but intent on putting his own stamp on the ball club.

"All of us who were on the staff still can see Hutch standing in the dugout or sitting in the office. We'll never forget. But little by little those thoughts gradually will slip away. All of us have a job to do.

"I managed on my own last year after Hutch finally had to step down. But I didn't set down the rules. I could change the rotation and I did because Hutch was in no position to do it. I don't know how in the world a man could break in under more distressing conditions."

Sisler has given a great deal of thought to his plans for managing the Reds, with the help of a solid, loyal staff.

"I've seen some rules work one place and not work in others," he said. "The important thing is to back up your rules. I don't mind if a fellow wants to take a drink of a couple of beers. But if they go beyond to the extreme, they hurt the majority of the others."

For years Dick was judged by the impossible standards set by his father, George Sisler, en route to the Hall of Fame. It was difficult to persuade people to rate him on his own merits.

"The first couple of years I worried a lot about it," he said. "It was worse on me than on my brothers because I was a hitter. I found out in a hurry I would never match my dad in running, fielding or hitting. I had to make up my mind to go out and do the best I could on my own and forget about any comparisons.

"I often have thought: wouldn't it be something if I could manage in the big leagues and manage better than my dad?"

George Sisler, who soon will be 72, managed the old St. Louis Browns from 1924 to 1926. He didn't win any pennants.

Princeton Wins Crucial Game

Michigan, with Cazzie Russell on the bench, lost one that really didn't matter and Princeton, with Bill Bradley in the drivers' seat, won one that mattered very much, indeed.

The mighty Wolverines, the nation's top - ranked college basketball team, found themselves assured of the Big Ten title and the accompanying NCAA tourney berth and had All - America Russell ailing going into Monday night's regular - season windup with Ohio State.

So Coach Dave Strack sat Russell on the bench. Result- a 93-85 Ohio State upset, the top game in a scattering of regular-season activity.

Princeton, meanwhile, got a typical clutch performance from Bradley, Player of the Year and a two - time All-America, in edging Penn State 60-58 and leading the advance of five teams through first-round activity in the far-flung NCAA tourney.

Bradley, who had 22 points, six assists and nine rebounds scored six clutch points in the last 2 1/2 minutes as the Tigers held off Penn State in the first game of a tripleheader at Philadelphia, with all winners advancing to the semis of the East regional tourney.

Nationally third - ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., had its hands full and had to come from behind for a 67-61 triumph over Connecticut while Providence romped over West Virginia 91-67 in the other two.

At Lubbock, Tex., Houston edged Notre Dame 99-98 in overtime as Ed Winch dropped in two free throws with six seconds left and Oklahoma City nipped Colorado State 70-68 on Charlie Hunter's jump shot in the final second. That put Houston in the Midwest regional semis and Oklahoma City in the West semis.

Meanwhile, the tourney field was completed in playoffs at Waco, Tex., and Dayton, Ohio, to determine the Southwest and Mid - America Conference representatives. Southern Methodist took Texas 80-78 at Waco and Ohio held off Miami of Ohio, 76-71 at Dayton.

That made the line-up for the NCAA regionals, all Friday and Saturday, with the latest rankings and season records, now read:

East, at College Park, Md.- North Carolina State 20-4 vs. Princeton 20-5, and No. 4 Providence 23-1 vs. No. 3 St. Joseph's, Pa. 26-1.

Mideast, at Lexington, Ky. -- No. 1 Michigan 21-3 vs. winner of tonight's Ohio U.-Dayton game, and No. 5 Vanderbilt 23-3 vs. winner of tonight's Eastern Kentucky - DePaul game.

Midwest, at Manhattan, Kan. -- Oklahoma State 19-6 vs. Houston 19-8, and Southern Methodist 16-9 vs. Wichita 19-7.

West, at Provo, Utah - San Francisco 23-4 vs. Oklahoma City 20-9, and No. 10 Brigham Young 21-5 vs. No. 2 UCLA 24-2.

Russell, the 6-foot-6 backcourt ace of the nation's top-ranked team, was suffering from a virus and had a fever of 101 when game time came against Ohio State.

He didn't play and the Wolverines suffered their third loss of the season -- their first in the Big Ten. The other two losses were by one point, to St. John's and Nebraska.

No. 5 Vanderbilt also closed out its regular season play with a 106-69 romp over Louisiana State.

Buffalo Within One Game Of Clinching Berth

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- Other teams leave their hearts and take their victories from San Francisco. But the National Basketball Association squad that calls Civic Auditorium home would rather just leave.

The San Francisco Warriors now have lost 13 straight there since last Dec. 20, including an 111-102 thrashing Monday night by the Baltimore Bullets.

The Warriors, defending Western Division champions, proudly moved from the Cow Palace into their new home at the start of this season and lost the first nine games they played there.

In handing San Francisco its 36th loss in the last 40 games, the Bullets moved to within a game of clinching third place and the last playoff spot in the Western Division.

Poplar Bluff Loses First Round

The difference in the game was DeSoto's accuracy from the free throw line. Although out-scored from the field, 18-14, the Dragons canned 15 of 22 charity tosses, including ten in the final quarter.

DeSoto will meet the winner of Monday night's Lutheran South-Beaumont game in the state quarter-finals at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday night at Washington University' Field House.

Pancho, Unc's Weapon For Davis Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Pancho Gonzales, the Fox, again may be Uncle Sam's secret weapon in the campaign to win back the Davis Cup.

"I'll admit I'm leaning toward Pancho as our coach," the new Davis Cup tennis captain, George MacCall, said today in announcing his early plans. "A lot will depend on whether he is available."

Gonzales, the former pro king who is said to have the finest tactical mind in the sport, is credited largely with America's success in winning the Cup from Australia in 1958 and 1963.

"I am considering some other coaches, too," MacCall added. "We're going to get the best man we can and make every effort to win the Cup. This is not an experimental year. This is an all-out year."

In New York Monday to meet the press, the 46-year-old MacCall, an insurance executive and club player in Los Angeles who once was an Air Force navigator, was promised the full support of the USLTA.

MacCall said he would assemble his first squad in mid-May —a four-man squad consisting of top-ranked Dennis Ralston, Frank Foehling III, Ron Holmberg and 18-year-old Cliff Richey.

These four will wage an extended European campaign, starting with the French championships in May and ending with Wimbledon in July.

"We are considering several other boys who aren't available for this trip," the captain said.

The United States' first match will be against Canada in mid-May. If successful, the Yanks then likely will go against Mexico at Mexico City, the European champion in Europe and, if still going, the Australians in Sydney after Christmas.

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) -- This southern Indiana city was ablaze with basketball excitement today in preparing to cheer its unbeaten darlings, the Evansville Purple Aces, to a second straight NCAA College Division championship.

The quarter-finals open in the ultra-modern, 13,000 - seat Roberts Stadium Wednesday afternoon. The semifinals are Thursday night and the champion will be crowned Friday night.

Oklahome State Headed For First Time As Champion

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Oklahoma State is headed for its eighth NCAA tourney — the first as Big Eight champion.

Big Eight teams have won 52 games in NCAA play, more than any other conference in the nation. Big Ten teams have won 51 games. The Big Eight's 52-35 mark is close to 60 per cent, one of the better winning percentages, and it has had nine finalists and three champions.

This includes Oklahoma State's seven NCAA trips before it joined the league, and all seven Colorado trips, three before it joined.

The OSU victory Monday night was the 719th of Iba's career. Two more in the NCAA will put him ahead of Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, now leading the nation's active coaches in career victories. Rupp's team has ended the season.

In other season-closing games Monday night, Kansas State beat Nebraska 79-67 at Lincoln for its first league road victory all season, and Iowa State clipped Missouri 78-65 at Ames. This left Missouri and Colorado tied for third at 8-6, Iowa State fifth at 6-8 and K-State and Nebraska tied for sixth, both with 5-9. Oklahoma was last with 3-11.

Bob Ziegler hit 29 and Al Koch 21 for Iowa State. Missouri could make only eight of 50 field shots the last half. George Flamank had 18 points, 18 rebounds for Missouri.

Connecticut State Continues Long String

KANSAS CITY (AP) --Every year for seven in a row, Central Connecticut State has come to the week-long NAIA basketball tournament and stayed only one day.

Augsburg, Minn. College cut the Connecticut team's visit short Monday night, knocking out the team from New Britain, 107-87.

Augsburg and Central Connecticut players were almost alone in Municipal Auditorium when the game finally ended after midnight.

The game was the final one on an opening day's program of eight contests.

Augsburg, seeded ninth, came to the tournament with a 24-3 record and is one of four seeded teams surviving a rough first day.

Southern Colorado, seeded No. 2, got knocked out by Southwestern La., 66-59.

Other seeded teams dropping first round games were Central Washington State, Transylvania of Kentucky and Northern Michigan.

Two seeded teams, Oklahoma Baptist and St. Benedict's, Kan., summoned last minute rallies to remain in the running.

BOSTON (AP)--Captain Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics says he owes his National Basketball Association Player of the Year award to his teammates.

For the fourth time in five years and fifth time over-all Russell has been named the league's MVP by the votes of member athletes.

"I may sound corny," Russell said Monday, "but the simple truth of the matter is that I owe this award to my teammates. They have made this the best year I have ever had."

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

APPORTIONMENT HEADACHE IS A CONTINUING PROBLEM

The General Assembly has a variety of proposals to deal with the sticky problem of reapportioning the state in compliance with rulings by the U. S. Supreme Court. And, there are some legislators, notably speaker Tom Graham, bent on putting off any definite action as long as possible.

Among proposals to handle the situation are ones which would increase the House membership to 170; provide for staggered 4 - year terms; weighted voting, etc.

A recent study of the situation has just been completed by the research staff at the School of Business and Publication Administration at the University of Missouri. Authors of the article are two research assistants, David Leuthold and Carlyle Dewey.

Leuthold and Dewey note that the problem of reapportioning the Missouri Senate is much less of a burden than that of the House.

At present, Missouri is divided into 34 senatorial districts while membership in the House comes from every county plus multiple membership for the more populated centers. The Missouri set up often is referred to as a "little federal system."

The authors of the article point out two alternatives to the reapportionment headache. One would be to divide out-state areas into equitable single-member districts by drawing new boundaries to replace county lines.

The second would retain present county boundaries but would group the smaller counties together to determine representation.

Historically, the article points out, the multi-member district has been in use at varying times since the 13th century in England. And, later most American colonies and states adopted this form of determining representation.

Leuthold and Dewey indicate that Missouri is among a minority of nine states which today elects members of both houses by single- member districts only. The authors note that multi - member districts make reapportionment easier because there would be no need to redraw political boundaries.

"Often times apportionment may be readjusted by simply adding or subtracting a member from a district or by transferring an entire county into or out of the district," they wrote.

EFFORTS RENEWED FOR ETV FIGHT

Once again, the Missouri legislature is being asked to give serious consideration to a proposed state-supported educational television network which at the outset, many feel, would serve the purpose of bringing the state closer to 20th century educational practices.

This year, the ETV bill is sponsored by Rep. Robert E. Young of Jasper County, who appears to be fighting actively behind the scenes to get his bill out of committee where it now is lodged.

During the 1963 legislative session, a similar effort was made but the matter failed to get out of committee, ostensibly because of the tremendous cost involved.

Basically, Young's ETV proposal calls for creation within the Department of Education a division of Educational Television. Established over a 10-year period, the total cost is estimated at $16,000,000 with $1,500,000 being expended during the first year of operation.

"It is our view that only through the 20th Century electronic miracle of television can we hope to broaden the education opportunity at the elementary and high school level throughout the state as much as it needs to be broadened," Young stated.

However, proponents of ETV do not regard it as a substitute for the classroom teacher. "We feel that ETV complements the work of the classroom teacher, especially in such areas as science and language at the elementary level," Young said.

Young noted that 29 states already have educational television programs in process while numerous others have the matter under serious consideration. "Missouri is the only state which doesn't have a commission to work in this field," Young added.

SLOW DRIVER ATTACKED

The Missouri Senate, with its eye on highway safety and Missouri's continually spiraling fatality log, has passed and sent on to the House a measure aimed at ridding state highways of the slow poke driver.

The bill provides for a minimum speed limit of 40 miles per hour on divided highways which are part of the federal interstate set - up. Violation would be a misdemeanor offense.

BILL DEADLINE

Majority Floor Leader Rep. H. F. (Pat) Patterson of Columbia has indicated he will sponsor a resolution setting March 18 as the deadline for bill introductions. An earlier date is expected in the Senate.

GOVERNOR SIGNS FIRST BILL—Governor Warren E. Hearnes March 3 signed the first piece of legislation to reach his desk during the 73rd General Assembly—a bill to guarantee payment of local costs near impoundments and dams built by the federal government. The bill, which affects many areas of the state awaiting construction of dams, received speedy treatment in the House and Senate. Behind Governor Hearnes are sponsors of the bill looking on in a ceremonial signing conducted in the large reception room of the Governor's office.

TUBERCULOSIS STUDY

33. Recommendation:

That a thorough study be made of the facilities and programs for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis at the State Sanatorium and the tuberculosis hospitals of the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City; that the study include:

a. A survey of the current and predicted needs for tuberculosis hospital and clinical facilities.

b. The present program of reimbursement by the Division of Health to the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City for tuberculosis patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals.

The methods for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis have changed significantly in recent years. New drugs and techniques have reduced the length of stay in hospitals for tuberculosis patients. On the other hand, improved case-finding programs and broader definitions of tuberculosis and tuberculosis - related diseases have increased the number of tuberculosis cases. There is a clear need for a comprehensive survey of the current and predicted needs for tuberculosis hospital and clinical facilities on a statewide basis including the state sanatorium and the tuberculosis hospitals of the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City. The study could include: a census of tuberculosis cases in Missouri; the bed capacity of each tuberculosis hospital; the percentage of under or overcrowding in the hospitals; and the physical condition of hospital buildings, equipment, and other facilities. The study should be made by the Division of Health with the cooperation of all state and local agencies, public and private, whose functions are related to tuberculosis prevention and treatment.

The study should also give special attention to the present program of reimbursement by the Division of Health to the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City for the cost of treatment of patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals. By statute, the state pays $17.50 per week for hospitalization and $5.00 per visit for out - patient clinic treatment for each indigent patient treated by the municipal tuberculosis hospitals. The total reimbursement cost paid to both municipal hospitals by the state for 1961-63 was approximately $1,200,000.

Recently a question has been raised as to the reliability of the examinations for tuberculosis given by the two city tuberculosis hospitals. A study made in 1963 of one of the municipal tuberculosis hospitals by an outside medical consultant revealed that of 130 patients, 45 patients or over 34% were inactive or quiescent tuberculosis cases which could be cared for either in a hospital for the chronically ill or in nursing or private homes. If the state is to continue this program of reimbursement it would appear that a detailed study and review should be made of the standards and procedures governing the medical examination and hospitalization of indigent patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals.

SURVEY OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S SERVICE

34. Recommendation:

That a study be made of the feasibility of transferring the State Crippled Children's Service from the University of Missouri to the Division of Health.

The Board of Curators of the University of Missouri, by statute, is responsible for the supervision and administration of the State Crippled Children's Service. The major purpose of the Crippled Children's Service is to provide for the treatment and hospitalization of crippled children in designated hospitals throughout the state. A nursing program for case-finding and post - treatment cases is an important part of the Service's functions.

The Division of Health has a staff of qualified and trained medical doctors and public health nurses engaged in programs providing public health services to children. A careful study should be made of the present organization and administration of the Crippled Children's Service to determine whether its functions as a public health service agency should be located within the organization of the University of Missouri which is dedicated primarily to education and research. The study could also determine whether the administrative costs and possible duplication of personnel could be reduced by the transfer of the Crippled Children's Service to the proposed Division of Public Health.

The Hungry Millions

Editor's Note — People are living longer, but throughout the world the means to feed a growing population is diminishing. There is grave concern that the paradox could lead to chaos in but a few years. The following second of five articles outlines the phenomenon of the world's population growth in terms of the world's ability to feed its people.

Hungry Millions part 2

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Mankind has achieved a measure of death control, and the world's food problem becomes more critical every day.

The crisis is today, experts say. To avert catastrophe a relatively few years hence will require huge increases in food production.

Man has learned to control death through medicines and modern technology. Disasters no longer take tolls as heavy as in the past. Man even has achieved a balance of terror which is holding major war in check.

But world food production has failed to keep pace with the resultant population increase. Man now faces a cruel paradox. He has increased his numbers at a frightening rate and does not feed them adequately.

Today, the world's population is estimated at 3.3 billion. At the current rate of increase there will be 4.5 billion on earth in 20 years, and by the end of this century, 6 billion, of whom 4.5 billion will be in the poor, predominantly nonwhite countries.

Rich America is in no immediate danger from its population explosion. But the world the United States lives in faces serious dangers. For a third of the world, conditions have improved steadily and it gets richer. For two-thirds, conditions have deteriorated and it gets poorer.

Since 1959, world agricultural production has managed to keep up with the annual 2 per cent world population growth, but no more than keep up. There is little margin left, and where the need is greatest, the expansion of food production has been slower than the world average.

Experts estimate that by 1975 the world will need a 35 per cent increase in food production just to keep pace with present subsistence levels. Thus, man is like Wonderland's Alice on her treadmill, running faster and faster just to stay in one place. If the situation is to improve, the world will need, in reality, 50 per cent more food in a decade.

Dr. Binjay Ranjan Sen, director general of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, recently told the Royal Commonwealth Society in London that overpopulation is the root of the problem. Yet a country would not be consdiered overpopulated if it used its resources properly.

"With few exceptions there is not a country in the world which could not double and feed its population — if it had time," said Dr. Raymond Ewell, a food expert at the State University of New York in Buffalo.

But time is the big problem. India, for example, is likely to increase in population to 700 million in 15 years. She cannot possibly produce enough to feed 200 million extra mouths. Even the rich United States would have vast trouble nourishing 200 million added people.

Japan intensively cultivates the little land it has and gets enormous yields through efficient methods. India's land is inefficiently used.

Yet Japan is concerned about zooming population. It has increased 22 million since the end of World War II. She has no room for the prospective 15 million more which will be there by 1980 unless a birth control campaign which has been instituted in Japan applies a brake.

No figures are available for what has been happening in Communist China. It has had some improvement in production but not enough, probably, to keep step with population growth. Elsewhere in the East, food production has lagged.

Evidently Peking is concerned. t has called in Japanese family planning experts to examine the problem, an un-Marxist step. But China can see the light ahead only if her population stays at a level which can be sustained by her resources.

Chinese agriculture is hard pressed to keep step with population increases even now. In lean years of natural disaster, there were reports of famine. China has looked hungrily at other people's land, including even that of the Russians.

In the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe, adverse weather and Communist bureaucracy have interfered with production. In Latin America, food production per person declines steadily as the population explodes at the world's highest rates. As population goes up, so does demand for food, adding a new threat — inflation.

Death control compounds the problem. Experts warn that there will be steadily more older and working-age people competing economically. Population increases thus can gobble up economic improvement and prevent progress against the overall problem.

Economic development is a key to food problems, but death control interferes. Egypt, for example, when it completes the Aswan Dam project, hopes to have millions more acres to cultivate. But the rise in population could cancel out new production.

Production has increased greatly in North America and developed areas. But even if the United States were to undertake feeding the whole hungry world — which theoretically it might be able to do — there would be enormous economic and social problems in the way.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts that food deficit regions will gain only slightly in the years immediately ahead and will be obliged to make up differences in imports. By 1970, the chances are that America will have to provide at least half the deficit, mostly from her own enormous surpluses.

Next: Brother or comrade.

The best way to avoid that run-down feeling is to cross the street at the intersection.

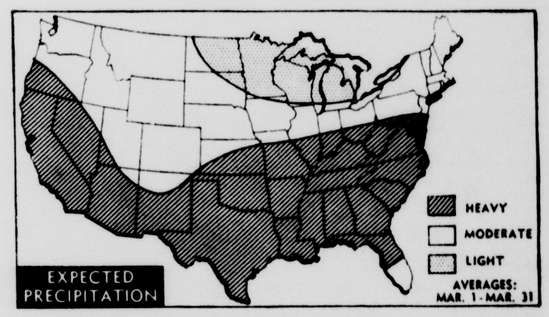
Unpleasant is the word to describe the country in March. Except for a belt running from coast to coast in the north, most temperatures will be below normal.



While the southern part of the nation and most of the Northwest receive heavy precipitation, the Northeast and part of the Midwest will see moderate dampness.

like looking for someone who doesn't read newspapers

Very hard to find. 99 million people in almost 9 out of every 10 homes read newspapers. It's the most sought after, often bought, eagerly consumed, intensely depended upon product in the world. The reason is obvious. We can't do without it. The need to know about the news and events that touch and shape our lives is deep, intense, unending. And the need to know is now. Today. So it's not very hard to figure out why more advertising dollars are spent in daily newspapers than in TV, magazines, radio, and outdoor combined.

Unwanted Children Often Victims of Serious Abuse

When a three-month-old baby fractured its leg by wedging it between the slats of his crib, the doctor figured that it was an accident. When the same baby was brought to his office six weeks later with a fractured skull, and the parents claimed the baby injured itself by rolling off his bathinette, the doctor became suspicious. This baby seemed unusually accident prone.

He ordered X-rays of all of the tiny body. The X-rays told a shocking story. Several of the infant's bones had been fractured at different times, and were in varying stages of healing. This baby was not accident prone. He was a victim of one of the dread 'diseases' of infancy; the "battered child syndrome."

"Thousands of American children, perhaps as many as ten thousand, fall ill each year with this 'disease.' " This is the estimate given Women's Medical News Service by Vincent De Francis, Director of the Children's Division of the American Humane Society. The disease is caused not by a germ or a virus, but by adults, usually parents, he says, who reject their children and abuse them severely and repeatedly.

Most of the battered children, experts agree, are under five years of age. More than half of 662 abused youngsters studied by De Francis were under four years of age. Many were infants under one.

'REASONS' FOR ABUSE

For crying too much, for failing to become toilet - trained quickly enough, for other trivial reasons, little children are beaten until their bones break. One five-month-old infant was found to have more than 30 broken bones, others had severe burns, still others had their skulls fractured by violent blows.

Mr. De Francis reports that one in four children he studied died as the result of his injuries. Eighty percent of the fatally injured, he found, were under four; more than half under two. "Three out of four of all the children who died," said Mr. De Francis, "died at the hands of one or both parents."

A five-man medical team, headed by Dr. C. Henry Kempe, and which included pediatricians, a radiologist (X-ray specialist), an obstetrician - gynecologist, and a psychiatrist, found that of 302 abused children reported by 71 hospitals across the nation, more than one - third died or suffered permanent brain damage. Dr. Kempe is Professor of Pediatrics and Chairman of the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Colorado School of Medicine.

The physicians reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association,* "Not infrequently the beaten infant is a product of an unwanted pregnancy, a pregnancy which began before marriage, too soon after marriage, or at some other time felt to be extremely inconvenient."

They observed that some parents who batter their children "are immature, impulsive, self-centered hypersensitive, and quick to react with poorly controlled aggression."

Mr. De Francis affirmed that wider dissemination of birth control information might be an effective tool in the effort to reduce the incidence of "unwantedness" and therefore of the battered child syndrome.

According to Mr. De Francis, "Communities must become more aware of all the resources available to protect children and to help distressed families. Family planning agencies, children's protective services, family service societies, all can help prevent the horror of the battered child.

"Prevention is more vital than action taken after the damage has been done," he continued. "The kind of people who abuse their children are recognizable and treatable, if help and understanding are given them. They are not, usually, psychotic." A spokesman for the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, concurred in these views.

FAMILY BACKGROUND OF ABUSED CHILDREN

Abused children come from all kinds of homes, all kinds of racial and religious backgrounds. Some live in overcrowded filthy slums, some in well-tended middle-class homes. Their parents may barely be able to read or write, or may be college graduates holding well-paying, responsible jobs. Most often, the children live with both parents, and do not come from broken homes.

Mr. De Francis reports that the average age of the abusive mothers was 26, of the fathers 30. He and other experts find that the marriages are frequently unstable, and that often one or the other parent drinks excessively.

It's not uncommon for one child in such a family to be singled out for abuse while brothers and sisters are treated gently. Sometimes the abused child reminds a parent of a hated brother, sister, or parent; sometimes this is the child who was unwanted.

WHAT CAN BE DONE TO COMBAT CHILD ABUSE

More than half the states have passed laws requiring doctors and institutions to report cases of child abuse to public authorities. Other states are considering such legislation.

The Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, alarmed by the rise in child abuse cases, has drawn up a model law to facilitate the work of state legislatures. Mandatory reporting and immunity from prosecution are the key elements in the Bureau's law.

Sometimes doctors and other medical personnel are granted immunity from civil or criminal action, to protect them from lawsuits arising from their action.

Where reporting is not mandatory, Mr. De Francis urges physicians treating abused children, and relatives and friends of such distressed families, to volunteer this information. He believes that the social service department of a hospital, public and private agencies concerned with child and family problems, and especially children's protective agencies, geared to move quickly in such cases, are the appropriate places to report instances of child abuse.

Mrs. Jerry Dyer

Junior Troop 273 Lead By Mrs. Dyer

Mrs. Jerry Dyer has been a scout leader for the past three years, serving two years as a Brownie leader and presently as leader for Junior Troop #273. Mrs. Dyer is very ably assisted by Mrs. George Doyle and Mrs. Joe Dye.

Mrs. Dyer has taken the basic leaders' training course and other training to prepare for the summer camp program. She has worked two years in Brownie Day Camp and one year in the Girl Scout Day Camp. She also has served as unit director at Sweetwater, an annual weekend camping trip for all scouts at the Cotton Boll Area.

She and her husband, Mr. Jerry Dyer, who is a heating and cooling contractor, have two children. Their daughter, Gail is now a Junior Scout.

Mrs. John Sargent

Mrs. Sargent Is Able Leader Of Scout Troop 159

Cadette Girl Scout Troop #159 has had the good fortune to have Mrs. John Sargent for its leader for the past five and one half years. She has been very ably assisted by Mrs. John McBride until just recently. Not only has Mrs. Sargent been very active as a leader, having taken, as preparation for leadership, the complete training course, but she has served as a consultant and represented Sikeston as neighborhood delegate to the Cotton Boll Council. She has also been arts and crafts and cycling director at the annual summer day camp program.

Mrs. Sargent is married to Dr. John Sargent who is active in Boy Scouting. They have three children, John who is a Lion Cub Scout and Jan, thirteen, a cadette scout and a younger child at home.

The Sargents are active in the Lee Hunter and Middle School P. T. A. and the primary organization and other auxiliaries of the Morman Church.

"Petite" is a term employed by those who prefer a polite way of saying some girl is less than average size.

I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hit. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. (Psalm 32:5)

PRAYER: We are grateful, O Lord, for the wonder of forgiven sin. We pray that our sins in thought, word and deed may lead us to true repentance, which makes us receptive and grateful for Thy grace. In the Savior's name we pray. Amen.

When John D. Rockefeller, Sr., learned that his family planned a surprise birthday gift —a $6000 electric automobile in which he could drive around his estate — he told his well-meaning relatives, "If it's all the same with you, I'd rather you gave me the money." — Henry Minott

Mrs. John Walton Leads Jr. Troop

Mrs. John Walton has been associated with Girl Scouting for the past two years as leader of Junior Troop #139. Mrs. Walton and her husband, who is engaged in farming, have two children and have been most active in their church work, P. T. A. and Girl Scouting. Mrs. Walton has taken leaders' training to qualify her leadership. The Waltons are members of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Mattie Speed has served as the assistant leader of Troop #139 for the past two years. She not only has given much of her time and effort to scouting, but to all youth in her community. Mrs. Speed holds an A. B. degree from Arkansas State College, having done some graduate work. She has taught in the Big Ridge School for the past nine years. She has given twenty years service as a 4-H Club leader and been director of the youth in the Methodist Church for the past fifteen years, as well as serving as superintendent. Mrs. Speed is to be commended for the interest in the youth of today.

Mrs. Leana Bennett has also assisted with Troop #139 for the past two years but was unable to be present when the above picture was taken. She, too, has been very active in helping with this troop.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I would deeply appreciate it if you would print this in your Letters to the Editor column.

This is in regard to the Standard's article last week by Thomza Zimmerman, concerning the Advance "Hornets".

In his letter he spoke of Mr. Whittle trying to get publicity for himself, what pray tell was Mr. Zimmerman attempting to do. He must also be a very unhappy and frustrated person.

He stated that he had played basketball when he was in high school and had played just as hard then to win as the players do now. He sure must have played a very hard and bloody game. He stated it is no crime in losing, or winning, then why did the Advance Hornets play for blood in one of the dirtiest games I have seen in ages? I will not even state the name of the team they were playing, because it is plain to see which one it was. He stated that short-sighted fans and bird-brained sports writers cause most of the trouble. Well, how about it when some of the players deliberately start kicking and knocking around other players? It is also degrading when cheerleaders mock and try to ridicule another team's cheerleaders when they are trying to do a yell in support of their team!

What kind of living is that? It is living that is brought on by people who want to win, no matter what the means of winning may be. This I agree is uncalled for. Something should be done to protect the ball-players, but from what, the other team? It seems to me that some schools should attempt to learn a little about fair play and being good sports.

Sincerely yours,
Not an Advance fan.

When arrangements were being made for painting the portrait of Grace Coolidge which hangs in the China Room of the White House, the artist, Howard Chandler Christy, suggested that she wear a red dress to contrast with her white collie, Rob Roy. But President Coolidge held out for a white brocaded - satin gown that he greatly liked, saying with a solemn air, "She could wear the white dress and we'd dye the dog." — Ishbel Ross

Seat belts can reduce severe injuries by one-third a year!

And, if every car owner in America had seat belts in his car and used them, we could reduce auto deaths by 5,000 a year!

The picture shows how a seat belt can make the critical difference between health and injury—or life and death—for your child. Or for you.

The distance between the child's head and the dash, windshield or car roof is the critical distance for him every time he rides in the car. A sudden panic stop—even when the car is going slowly—or a collision can hurdle him through that short distance with brutal force . . . unless he is held in his seat by a seat belt like the boy in the picture.

Remember: Drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease! Seat belts can save more of these children than any method!

So drive with loving care, and protect your loved ones, and yourself, with seat belts.

Lightest Mexico

Mexico City--Right down the street from us is this interesting fellow named Prof. Megglestone Melendez who gets out on his roof at four o'clock every morning and shoots a cannon.

Prof. Melendez says this is to warn everybody about the perils of our modern age and to keep people on their toes. After ten years of studying bacteria in foreign lands he is now advising everyone to live in germ-proof bags, breathe sterilized air and quit kissing girls.

The rest of the neighborhood thinks the professor was a lot better off (and people slept later) before he began squinting through microscopes and picking up outside ideas from professional researchers.

He warns that a man cannot tie his shoes these days without risking a coronary thrombosis or going batty. And after a lengthy hassel with him over what happens to smokers, I was about to toss away my cigars and take up grapevine again.

Then he came along with a report that air can cause lung cancer so I had to go on record as refusing to give up breathing.

Now the professor is expounding on the hazards of cosmetics and says he has found something in female war paint that's extremely deadly.

Professor, it's only the way they use it and that menace has long been known to mankind.

He adds, however, that while lipstick made his laboratory rats mighty sick folks he isn't quite sure of its effects on human beings and at this point I can make my contribution to science.

For your information, senor, I smooched a lady right on her lipstick 30 years ago and I have suffered no setbacks in health. I trust this inspired bit of research will speed up things and snap your mice out of whatever ails them.

So another medical friend of mine here was saying the other day that if all bugs are killed off, he'll be out of a job. And he added that he is in favor of people and said it is the delving into the mysteries of organisms that has increased our life span by many a year. This sounds like a conspiracy with the revenue people who want to keep you around longer to pay taxes but my pocketbook already has a severe case of anemia and it's high time the scientists work out a cure for that.

What puzzles me is the way humanity has survived this complicated swarm of invisible bugs and bacteria that now threaten us with extinction. The professor says part of it is due to abysmal ignorance because the old timers, unaware of any perils except old age and accidents, just kept on living.

But Prof. Melendez, a sceptic by nature since he is a scientist, feels the race has a chance even though everyone in the neighborhood (especially the ladies) is furious at him. They are convinced the headshrinkers and contemplaters of monkeys with whooping cough will steer us to the point of international inertia.

Now the professor predicts the age of pills will get us properly purified so we can stay in bed 24 hours a day on a menu something like this: Aspirin soup, antibiotic salad, sulfaguanidine souffle, atabrine tea and for desert, a warm enema.

Fair enough. But I mean to have my fling before the microbes do me in even if I have to let the Lady from Puebla play the Anvil Chorus on her steam calliope right after the 4 a.m. cannon shot.

The professor holds back a little at this threat because he says it would keep his rats in a permanent state of shock and shatter his windows.

STATE

A hearing on legislation to this effect, set for Monday night before the House Committee on Local Government, was called off by Chairman G. Stafford Owen, D-DeKalb County.

Owen said he was told by the sponsor of a bill eliminating double taxation that the measure was being dropped. The sponsor was Rep. George H. Pace, D-Marion County.

Defeated bond issues could not be resubmitted to voters for 12 months under a proposed constitutional amendment approved Tuesday night by a legislative committee.

The House Committee on Constitutional amendments okayed the measure by a 4-2 vote after hearing arguments from opponents of the bill. Supporters were heard in an earlier meeting.

The amendment would prohibit political subdivisions in Missouri from resubmitting for a year any bond issue not approved by voters in the original bond election.

John Fitzgerald, former representative from Jackson County, said the measure would "tie the hands of industrial development in the state." Cities, he said, would have a harder time obtaining funds to lure industries.

Fitzgerald pointed out that a series of bonds recently passed in Kansas City were defeated in the first election.

It is difficult to pass bond issues in Missouri, he said, since passage requires a two-third or four-sevenths majority, depending on the type of bond involved.

Proponents of the amendment have argued that political subdivisions at present can resubmit bond issues as often as they want.

The practice of submitting the same bond issue many times, they say, has been followed by some school districts that have trouble obtaining a two-thirds majority.

On trips to his Southern steel mills, Andrew Carnegie often chose to attend Sunday services at the nearest Negro church. On one trip he was so impressed with the sermon and the preacher that he put a larger than usual contribution in the plate. After counting and recounting the collection, the preacher surveyed his congregation and announced, "This morning we have in the collection $2.31. But if the bill put in by the gentleman sitting in the rear by the door is genuine, we have $102.31." — Davis Barnett.

Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island was visiting his state's former Sen. Theodore F. Green during Green's critical illness in a Providence hospital. Midway in the conversation the 94-year-old Green (who retired from the Senate last year) shouted at Pastore, "Turn on the TV quick!" The program proved to be the local news, which ended with a bulletin on the condition of ex-Senator Green. "This," he explained, "is the only way I can find out how I feel. The doctors just give me a lot of double-talk — and don't you tell them about this."

Green finally heard one bulletin on TV that was so good he climbed out of bed and went home. — George Dixon

Easing Morning Sickness
New Clue to Infertility
Measures Can Help Avoid Strokes
Dr. Talk

By Elizabeth Stewart
Women's Medical News Service

One of the most common discomforts of pregnancy is nausea, sometimes called "morning sickness." Experts estimate that about half of all pregnant women experience nausea for varying periods. Usually it occurs during the first three months of pregnancy, then disappears. Despite its nickname, it may occur at any time of day or night.

Since nausea often can be overcome by intake of foods high in carbohydrates, doctors frequently advise their patients to have as many as five or six small snacks of a cookie or crackers with jelly a day. If nausea is severe and persists, the doctor may prescribe a drug.

However, pregnant women should take drugs ONLY when prescribed by a physician.

Infertility -- the inability to conceive children -- is a stubborn and often heartbreaking condition which is slowly yielding its secrets to medical scientists.

Doctors Robert Franklin, M. D., and C. Dean Dukes, Ph.D., of Baylor University, College of Medicine, Houston, Texas, recently reported finding a new clue to unexplained infertility. After careful clinical tests, they established that some women ate temporarily immune to their husband's sperm. Their systems build up antibodies which make the sperm ineffective.

The scientists reasoned that these antibodies would disappear in time if not stimulated. They suggested to 13 couples that for specified lengths of time they not have marital relations in which the sperm might stimulate the further development of antibodies.

The antibodies declined markedly in all 13 women, and dropped to undetectable levels in 10. Nine of the 10 became pregnant when they resumed marital relations at the time of expected ovulation.

Strokes are the nation's number three killer, after heart disease and cancer. No respecter of age or sex, strokes strike suddenly, often with devastating effects. Now, says Dr. Paul Dudley White, one of the nation's best known heart specialists, many candidates for strokes can be identified by their physicians and preventive measures taken.

Young people whose mothers or fathers have had strokes should guard against excessive weight, smoke little or not at all (since smoking increases blood pressure), and should be physically active.

Physicians, advises Dr. White, should record certain basic information about such patients: blood pressure, electrocardiogram, heart and lung x-ray, blood cholesterol, and fasting blood sugar. From time to time this data should be updated and studied for any significant change.

USING TALENTS OF THE RETIRED
(From the Orlando, (Fla.) Sentinel)

The Small Business Administration has just organized a new army of volunteers who will undoubtedly prove of incalculable value to businesses in trouble. Known as S.C.O.R.E. (Service Corps of Retired Executives) the army is composed of 1,100 retired executives of national stature. They will serve without pay and will be assigned cases in or near their hometowns.

Among the millions of retirees in the United States there is a great wealth of knowledgeable talent in business, science, industry. S.C.O.R.E. will utilize this now wasted talent by assigning its members to business and industry for advice in handling specific problems, and and to help businessmen avoid some of the pitfalls one learns only by experience.

This is a highly worthy endeavor, not only for the businesses which will profit from the storehouse of knowledge these men have, but also for the retirees. The satisfaction of challenge and accomplishment is one of the basic needs of the retired.

Girl Scouts Have Annual Recognition Dinner

Hospital Gets $18,745.

Although the real concerted campaign to raise $600,000 as the local share of the cost of adding another 50-bed wing to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital does not start until July, the building fund is growing steadily thanks to advance contributions from public spirited firms and individuals, it was announced today by Harold Jones, administrator of the hospital.

At a meeting of the finance committee of the building committee, held at the hospital Monday, contributions totaling $18,745 were reported in addition to gifts already received and banked.

Contributions reported yesterday included:

Bell City Gin, $250.; F. S. Hunter Farms, $400.; Scott County Milling Co., $3,000.; Nathan Yoffie, $250.; Dr. Joseph Blanton, $1,000; L. R. Bowman, $1,000.; Mitchell Insurance Agcy., $500.; S. F. Duckworth, $50.; Associated Natural Gas Co., $2,000.; Sterling Stores, $300.; Frank Lair, $300.; Smith-Alsop Paint and Wallpaper, $150.; Goza-Harper Motor Co., $300.; Tharon Stallings Ins. Agcy., $500.; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jarvis, $2,100.; Topper Town Farms, $200.; Hunter's Gin, $200.; Harts Bakery, $3,000; Mt. Level Farms, $1,500.; Oran State Bank, $300.; W. A. Gemeinhardt, $1,000.; C. A. Critchlow, $100.; Armand Gemeinhardt, $200.; Henry Cain, Jr., $100.; Charles T. Gardner, $25.; Homer Talford, $10 and W. O. Carroll, $10.

The committee points out that it is not necessary to wait until the campaign is actually started but those interested and willing to help in raising the local share may make their contributions at any time.

Over 750 Are At Affair

Few people really realize just how far-reaching or how many adults give their time and energy to the many Girl Scout programs conducted in and around Sikeston for the girls but the annual recognition dinner, such as was held Monday night, brings the facts fully in to view.

More than 750 men and women, guests and Girl Scouts, were at the Armory when Mrs. Joel Montgomery, as mistress of ceremonies called on the Rev. F. Edward Watson, pastor of Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church for the invocation that opened the program.

Mrs. Montgomery introduced Mrs. Paul Fisher, Neighborhood chairman for Brownie Troops who, in turn, called up the leaders of the ten Brownie Troops represented and each leader was introduced to the crowd and presented with a handsome silver compote.

State Senate Group Argues Public Accomodations Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A Senate committee Monday night heard both proponents and opponents of a broad public accommodations bill.

No action was taken on the measure, pending an amendment.

Introduced by Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis, the bill would prohibit discrimination in any public business. It would extend to more kinds of business than the 1964 federal civil rights act.

McNeal said he is preparing an amendment to place violations under the jurisdiction of the State Commission on Human rights. When the bill was introduced early in the session, McNeal said he did not feel the commission would receive the necessary funds to implement the measure.

It now appears it would, he said.

He introduced spokesmen for several organizations supporting the bill. Represented were the Missouri League of Women Voters, Missouri Labor Council, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Missouri Council of Churches, St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, NAACP, the Commission on Human Rights of the Roman Cathilic Archdiocese of St. Louis and the St. Louis County Commission on Human Relations.

The Rev. Edward J. O'Donnell, Wellston, of the St. Louis Archdiocese, said the law should represent the will of the people of Missouri — not simply compliance with the federal civil rights act.

Mrs. Paul Schreiber, St. Louis, speaking for the League of Women Voters, said 31 states now have public accomodations laws.

Opponents hammered away with the claim the bill would interfere with property rights. Depriving businessmen of the right to serve or sell to whom they choose is a violation of constitutional rights, they said.

Allen O. Kern, St. Louis, chairman of the States Rights party of Missouri, said the effect of the bill would be involuntary servitude and would lead to a totalitarian dictatorship.

"It is one-sided, leftist legisation," Kern said.

Another opponent, the Rev. Bill Barlow, representing the St. Louis Citizens Council, said "The moral right in this question is on the side of segregation."

"Property owner rights are as basic as human rights," he said, "and one is no good without the other."

The committee also heard testimony on a bill which would prohibit opened liquor or beer bottles in a motor vehicle. Action was deferred.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, introduced the measure to make it a misdemeanor and a 3-point violation on a driver's record to carry opened alcoholic beverage containers.

He said it would be a strong law prohibiting opened containers even if locked in the trunk or suitcase.

Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, spoke in support of the measure. He said it is designed to be a part of the overall safety effort.

The question of search and seizure by law enforcement officials, often debated in the Missouri Legislature, was discussed in relation to Blackwell's bill.

A move to free some state residents from double library taxes apparently has fizzled in the House.

It now appears it would, he said.

He introduced spokesmen for several organizations supporting the bill. Represented were the Missouri League of Women Voters, Missouri Labor Council, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Missouri Council of Churches, St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, NAACP, the Commission on Human Rights of the Roman Cathilic Archdiocese of St. Louis and the St. Louis County Commission on Human Relations.

The Rev. Edward J. O'Donnell, Wellston, of the St. Louis Archdiocese, said the law should represent the will of the people of Missouri — not simply compliance with the federal civil rights act.

Mrs. Paul Schreiber, St. Louis, speaking for the League of Women Voters, said 31 states now have public accomodations laws.

Opponents hammered away with the claim the bill would interfere with property rights. Depriving businessmen of the right to serve or sell to whom they choose is a violation of constitutional rights, they said.

Allen O. Kern, St. Louis, chairman of the States Rights party of Missouri, said the effect of the bill would be involuntary servitude and would lead to a totalitarian dictatorship.

"It is one-sided, leftist legisation," Kern said.

Another opponent, the Rev. Bill Barlow, representing the St. Louis Citizens Council, said "The moral right in this question is on the side of segregation."

"Property owner rights are as basic as human rights," he said, "and one is no good without the other."

The committee also heard testimony on a bill which would prohibit opened liquor or beer bottles in a motor vehicle. Action was deferred.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, introduced the measure to make it a misdemeanor and a 3-point violation on a driver's record to carry opened alcoholic beverage containers.

He said it would be a strong law prohibiting opened containers even if locked in the trunk or suitcase.

Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, spoke in support of the measure. He said it is designed to be a part of the overall safety effort.

The question of search and seizure by law enforcement officials, often debated in the Missouri Legislature, was discussed in relation to Blackwell's bill.

A move to free some state residents from double library taxes apparently has fizzled in the House.

RIGHT TO WORK STATES LEAD IN ECONOMIC PROGRESS

Newest statistics compiled and published by the U. S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics show Right to Work states continuing to lead the nation in the rate of improvement in industrial wages and the creation of new industrial jobs, as well as other pocket-book factors. It shows the compulsory unionism ("union shop") states lagging in comparison.

The official figures for the 10 year period, 1953-1963 show:

A -- Right to Work states were the top three in the nation in the rate of new jobs created in business and industry -- (1) Nevada, (2) Arizona, (3) Florida. Two other Right to Work states -- Utah and Arkansas -- were among the first 10 in this primary measurement of industrial and economic progress.

The average rate of improvement in new jobs created in the 10 year period showed the 10 Right to Work states leading the 31 non-Right to Work states 23.2% to 9.9%. (Wyoming, which enacted the law in 1963, not counted)

B -- Three of the top five, and seven of the top 10 states in the nation in rate of gain in hourly wage rates in manufacturing jobs were Right to Work states. North Dakota was 2nd in the nation in this category, Florida was 3rd, Iowa 4th, Utah 6th, Alabama 7th, South Dakota 8th, Nevada 10th.

A Right to Work state, Nevada, led all the states in the union in the dollars and cents wage being paid production workers in industry -- with an average hourly rate of $3.11. In this category of dollars and cents wages paid, three Right to Work states are among the 10 highest -- Nevada, Indiana, Utah.

The fact that a few of the Right to Work states show a lower dollars-and-cents average wage rate than the national average (though catching up rapidly) is explained in the statement by the North Carolina State Development Board. The cotton, textile and other agri-industries concentrated in some Southern states offer thousands of non-skilled jobs whose pay rate, beginning relatively low, is rising swiftly with mechanization of production and training of the non-skilled and semi-skilled to broaden the base of skilled workers.

The Committee is now preparing a new brochure containing statistics on all of the accepted economic yardsticks -- comparing the Right to Work states with the compulsory unionism states.

Columnist Max Freedman writes: "The uproar in Congress over reapportionment is the visible and dramatic proof that the minority on the Supreme Court was right in its forebodings that serious problems would be created by the court's decision. With unavailing logic and legal scholarship, Justice Frankfurter (now retired) and Justice Harlan led the opposition on the court to the judicial settlement of these reapportionment problems . . . They foresaw the new problems that would arise once the court began to work in these political thickets. Other members of the court, and large sections of public opinion, began to see the wisdom of these forebodings when a majority of the justices later ruled that both branches of a state legislature must have their membership determined by population."

Women love furs, but they don't know how to care for them, a New York furrier told us. One of the common mistakes, he said, is storing or hanging furs in a plastic bag. He recommended a cloth bag and for white furs a dark cloth bag. He said carrying a handbag on the arm causes abrasions on the pelt, and stuffing pockets causes the fur to stretch out of shape. He added that perfume and cologne should never be sprayed directly on furs and cleaning fluids and moth sprays can discolor them. He also said if furs are worn in wet weather they should be allowed to dry naturally and then shaken vigorously to restore their luster.

According to Tacitus, robbery, murder and outrage are often dignified by the false name of government.

The favor of the multitude is seldom acquired by honest and lawful means, said Immanuel Kant.

Samuel Johnson once observed that law is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public.

Machiavelli held that it is not titles that reflect honor upon a man but men on their titles.

Goethe said that the best government is that which teaches us to govern ourselves.

John Stuart Mill once said that the liberty of the individual does not permit making himself a nuisance to others.

Wrote Alexander Hamilton in The Federalist: "Cabal, intrigue and corruption, deadly adversaries of republican government, might naturally be expected to make their approaches from more than one quarter, but chiefly from the desire of foreign powers to gain an improper ascendant in our councils."

Rousseau believed that good laws lead to the making of better ones and that bad laws bring about worse.

GOOD NEWS

The consumers of the country got some good news from Washington the other day. It took the form of a report that the Administration has tentatively decided to request the repeal of a number of the federal retail excise taxes next year.

These levies -- which are precisely the same as sales taxes -- apply to such universally used articles as cosmetics, handbags, jewelry, fountain pens and so on. And it is an irony that most of them were passed on an emergency basis during World War II and the Korean War, and it was generally believed that they would end with those conflicts. But they are still on the books all these years later.

The apparent fact that the Administration's decision is described as tentative poses a question mark. And it is a question mark that should be eliminated. The articles involved cannot logically be classed as luxuries in our kind of society. Numbers of them are absolute necessities. As a matter of simple justice, repeal should have taken place long ago.

Washington reports say that the plan also calls for repeal of reduction of certain other special taxes. These are like the retail sales taxes which one government official described as "increasing the cost of doing business."

The reason given for the expected Administration move is that repeal would have a salutary effect on the economy at a time when it might be starting a downturn. That is important. But it is even more important that the government finally keep its word and relieve us of these "wartime emergency" burdens.

A BIG PORK BARREL

This nation's commercial transportation problems run a very wide gamut. One of them --and one which seems to be given much less attention than it deserves -- is found in the inland waterway system. Carriers on these waterways account for less than 10 per cent of the total intercity freight volume of the nation -- and nearly 90 per cent of the freight they do carry is not for the general shipping public. Instead, it consists of the traffic of companies hauling their own products.

Yet inland waterways have cost the government (that is, the taxpayers) more than $3 billion, and the bill during the current fiscal year for building, maintaining and operating the waterways will come to $200 million.

The late President Kennedy proposed that waterway users pay some of the heavy taxpayers demands that those who enjoy the benefits (of federal programs) should bear a greater share of the costs."

Legislation toward this end has been introduced in Congress. It is in no way punitive--the fuel tax would produce only about $8 million in fiscal 1965, a tiny fraction of the costs for which waterways are responsible. Yet it is opposed right down the line by waterway partisans who want to continue to enjoy huge taxpayer subsidies without contributing even a most modest amount to help pay for the facilities they use.

Who should be interested in this problem? Answer: Every taxpayer --YOU.

WHO NEEDS A SLIDE RULE FOR SIMPLE ARITHMETIC?

The very people responsible for what unemployment there is, try to duck the blame by clouding the case with big words, academic theories, falsehoods.

Employment comes from making goods and providing services that people want, at a cost people can afford.

Unemployment comes when the costs get so high that too few people can afford to buy.

High costs come from

1. Businessmen who won't keep their plants modern enough to help hold costs down.

2. Workers who demand more money without producing more, to earn it.

3. Taxes so high they restrict business (and individuals) and do not leave enough for managers to replace old high-cost equipment.

If government, labor and business joined forces, they could cure unemployment fast and forever.

Footnote: Employment is extremely high in this country. Unemployment is not as serious as some politicians would have you believe. We are actually importing sugar cane cutters from Barbados, secretaries from England, etc.

But any unemployment is hurtful and except for the handicapped, needless.

A NEW SIN

A few days ago, a Roman Catholic priest in Chicago called moving traffic violations "one of the new sins that have arisen since Moses received the Ten Commandments."

The Reverend John S. Banahan told a conclave of traffic judges, prosecutors and clergymen that he wished his parishioners would include their "traffic sins" in their confessions.

This is not a bad idea. It might encourage more drivers to stay alive long enough at least to get to church. They are hardly doing so now. The National Safety Council's latest semi-annual traffic accident data shows a 12 percent increase in the national traffic accident death rate. There were 21,280 victims in the first half of this year - 2,240 more than last year, and a new all time high, following the 1963 all time high, following the 1962 all time high, following the 1961 . . . and so on, ad nauseam.

It is not odd that in this country the people choose the automobile as their favorite weapon of aggression? Maybe the reformers who want to limit gun sales are shooting at the wrong target!

For ourselves, we would rather not limit anything that doesn't need limiting. But we can only agree with the insurance people who are calling for a more positive and intelligent method of driver qualification.

This plea was put in temperate and sensible language by Kemper Insurance in a recent "Call To Action" addressed to press and public. Pointing to the surprising frequency of accidents involving drinkers and young people, Kemper made the reasonable suggestion that there are some causes of accidents that merit immediate public consideration to be followed by whatever action seems necessary.

Something should certainly be done about the little - regarded fact that 30 percent of the drivers involved in accidents are in the "under-25" age group, which comprises only 17.7 percent of all drivers.

Something should certainly be done about the even less regarded fact that autopsies show alcohol in 48 percent to 60 percent (depending on the state) of all driver fatalities.

It is not inconceivable that irresponsible drivers may yet drive the rest of us off the road altogether - by economic pressure!

BANK ON FREEDOM

Over a relatively brief period of years, American banking has gone through a steady and meaningful evolution -- an evolution, in fact, which would seem actually revolutionary to the bankers and the bankers' customers at turn-of-the century times.

The upshot of this is what is called "full service" banking. It is precisely what the term implies. The "full service" bank provides the usual checking and savings accounts. Then it offers loans at low rates for practically any legitimate purpose -- home loans, auto loans, personal loans, business loans, and so on down a lengthly list. It recognizes -- as do the basic laws under which it operates -- that the intelligent use of credit keeps the wheels of industry and business turning and serves an essential need of American enterprise and the American family, which in turn compounds employment, production and earnings.

The success of "full service" banking is a matter of record. It has totally justified its existence. At the same time, its ability to fully meet the needs of the nation and the community is threatened by proposed laws which would impose limitations, some arbitrary and narrow, on its services. As an example, legislation would be applied to matters which should be determined and reconsidered from time to time by the bank supervisory agencies.

At the same time, most authorities agree that there is a need for a very different kind of legislation -- legislation that would modernize the lending authority of national banks and provide them with greater flexibility in meeting requests for loans. As an example here, there would be sound and moderate liberalization of the terms on which the banks concerned can make loans on forest tracts and on residential real estate.

The ability and will of the modern bank to serve every practical need have been proven. Given the freedom to operate under equitable legislation and regulation, they will move with flexibility and imagination to meet the changing financial needs of this growing nation.

DOCTOR, ARE YOU SURE?

The physical differences between the male and the female are much less pronounced in human beings than they are in birds and bees and animals, a Philadelphia anthropologist has concluded.

Perhaps one reason for this is that lady bees and birds may not wear slacks and crop their hair or feathers close and otherwise behave so much like gentlemen bees and birds.

And maybe boy bees and birds don't wear Beatle hairdos or featherdos which might tend to make them look like girl bees and birds, if girl bees and birds crop their hair or feathers.

Nevertheless, and without taking a thing away from the anthropological skills of the Philadelphia doctor, a lot of earnest girl watchers -- human girl watchers, that is -- are going to be surprised at what he says.

They are going to believe that he either needs new glasses or that he just hasn't been paying attention. -- P. J.

1925 FLORIDA BOOM

In 1925, after four years in the oil business in Arkansas, I had money to spare and made the wild Florida real estate boom everyone was talking about.

Prices around Tampa were lower than at Miami, so I bought 100 acres near Tampa placing $10,000 in escrow with a bank.

I liked the ridge country and went to Sebring. There I learned of Lake Childs, a round blue - water lake eight miles across, near what promised to be a future trans-state crossroads.

A large turpentine company owned a tract which included the entire coastline of Lake Childs and 300 acres of orange trees which proved it citrus growing land. I went to the company's Jacksonville office intending to pay substantial money for an option.

They had saved this tract while disposing of their other cutover land and were more interested in securing a good developer than in taking in cash. They contacted my references, set an attractive price and gave me a free 90 day option.

Soon a storm at Tampa, followed by a hurricane at Miami, exploded the over - inflated boom. I offered to surrender my option, but the company elected to extend it although I told them I had no prospective builders.

The investors who sold me the land North of Tampa began to litigate among themselves, clouding their title. The bank returned my $10,000 escrow money.

I left the wildest real estate boom up to that time losing little more than my modest expenses.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- There's a very good unadvertised reason why the Republican leadership has decided to take a tough stand on Vietnam.

In their secret policy meeting huddles, Republican Senators and Congressmen have agreed they have President Johnson over a barrel. They figure that Vietnam was a dead end for Eisenhower, and must be for Johnson. Eventually he will have to pull out.

When that happens they can point to their own loyal, unfailing support, then accuse LBJ of backing down despite that support. This is what the Republicans regard as a "tails-I-win, heads-you-lose" political proposition.

This type of thinking has pervaded all GOP unofficial discussion of the Vietnam crisis, though it hasn't been expressed in exactly those words.

When it comes to official discussion at GOP policy meetings, Sen. Dirksen of Illinois has taken the lead, has made somewhat the same statements as he has made publicly. It's at the informal discussions that the real strategy is talked about.

Dirksen was not present at the next to the last policy meeting, having been in the hospital. This was a luncheon meeting to which most Republican Senators were invited, including non-members of the committee. Bourke Hickenlooper, Iowa, as policy chairman, presided. He launched into an endorsement of the President's get - tough policy in Vietnam and was echoed by ten or twelve other Senators. Not one disagreed, not even Jack Javits, the New York Liberal who seldom agrees with Hickenlooper on anything.

Senators Karl Mundt, S. D., and Jack Miller, Iowa, grumbled about the insults the United States has been receiving from just about every two-bit nation. One of them pointed out that the United States had suffered forty to fifty affronts, including embassy-stonings and library-burnings, during the past year. Speaker after speaker expressed outrage.

Only skeptic was Roman Hruska of Nebraska who questioned whether the bomb damage in North Vietnam was as great as the Johnson administration claimed. Hruska was suspicious of Johnson's failure to release pictures of the targets.

"I would like to see some pictures of these so-called retaliatory attacks," he huffed. "I'd like to see exactly what the damage was."

--DIRKSEN'S REWARD--

As a result of the Republicans' official support for LBJ on Vietnam, the White House is giving Sen. Dirksen the green light on patronage. On Capitol Hill it's now said: "If you want a job from Johnson, talk to Dirksen."

The urbane senator from Illinois will have the appointment of two key vacancies on the Federal Power Commission and the Federal Communications Commission. The first will affect the gas and electricity rates for millions of housewives and American industry for some years to come.

The Federal Communications Commissioner will affect the crime programs seen by the children of American housewives for some years to come.

Presumbably the Vietnamese crisis will be over in less than a year.

--THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER--

President Johnson made the painstaking efforts to patch up the feud between himself and his old Texas adversary, Sen. Ralph Yarborough. But unwittingly his eldest daughter is now jeopardizing it.

Lynda Bird Johnson went out on a blind date arranged by Mrs. Marta Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Miller. The Johnsons and the Millers are family friends.

The blind date turned out to be Ted Boone, a young lawyer with the J. W. Rouse Mortgage Bank, who had been dating Sen. Yarborough's secretary, Fran Engler.

Not until she read it in the society pages did a tearful Fran learn that her boy friend had stood her up to date the President's daughter.

RIGHT TO WORK STATES LEAD IN ECONOMIC PROGRESS

Newest statistics compiled and published by the U. S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics show Right to Work states continuing to lead the nation in the rate of improvement in industrial wages and the creation of new industrial jobs, as well as other pocket-book factors. It shows the compulsory unionism ("union shop") states lagging in comparison.

A -- Right to Work states were the top three in the nation in the rate of new jobs created in business and industry -- (1) Nevada, (2) Arizona, (3) Florida. Two other Right to Work states -- Utah and Arkansas -- were among the first 10 in this primary measurement of industrial and economic progress.

The average rate of improvement in new jobs created in the 10 year period showed the 10 Right to Work states leading the 31 non-Right to Work states 23.2% to 9.9%. (Wyoming, which enacted the law in 1963, not counted)

B -- Three of the top five, and seven of the top 10 states in the nation in rate of gain in hourly wage rates in manufacturing jobs were Right to Work states. North Dakota was 2nd in the nation in this category, Florida was 3rd, Iowa 4th, Utah 6th, Alabama 7th, South Dakota 8th, Nevada 10th.

A Right to Work state, Nevada, led all the states in the union in the dollars and cents wage being paid production workers in industry -- with an average hourly rate of $3.11. In this category of dollars and cents wages paid, three Right to Work states are among the 10 highest -- Nevada, Indiana, Utah.

The fact that a few of the Right to Work states show a lower dollars-and-cents average wage rate than the national average (though catching up rapidly) is explained in the statement by the North Carolina State Development Board. The cotton, textile and other agri-industries concentrated in some Southern states offer thousands of non-skilled jobs whose pay rate, beginning relatively low, is rising swiftly with mechanization of production and training of the non-skilled and semi-skilled to broaden the base of skilled workers.

The Committee is now preparing a new brochure containing statistics on all of the accepted economic yardsticks -- comparing the Right to Work states with the compulsory unionism states.

Columnist Max Freedman writes: "The uproar in Congress over reapportionment is the visible and dramatic proof that the minority on the Supreme Court was right in its forebodings that serious problems would be created by the court's decision. With unavailing logic and legal scholarship, Justice Frankfurter (now retired) and Justice Harlan led the opposition on the court to the judicial settlement of these reapportionment problems . . . They foresaw the new problems that would arise once the court began to work in these political thickets. Other members of the court, and large sections of public opinion, began to see the wisdom of these forebodings when a majority of the justices later ruled that both branches of a state legislature must have their membership determined by population."

Women love furs, but they don't know how to care for them, a New York furrier told us. One of the common mistakes, he said, is storing or hanging furs in a plastic bag. He recommended a cloth bag and for white furs a dark cloth bag. He said carrying a handbag on the arm causes abrasions on the pelt, and stuffing pockets causes the fur to stretch out of shape. He added that perfume and cologne should never be sprayed directly on furs and cleaning fluids and moth sprays can discolor them. He also said if furs are worn in wet weather they should be allowed to dry naturally and then shaken vigorously to restore their luster.

According to Tacitus, robbery, murder and outrage are often dignified by the false name of government.

The favor of the multitude is seldom acquired by honest and lawful means, said Immanuel Kant.

Samuel Johnson once observed that law is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public.

Machiavelli held that it is not titles that reflect honor upon a man but men on their titles.

Goethe said that the best government is that which teaches us to govern ourselves.

John Stuart Mill once said that the liberty of the individual does not permit making himself a nuisance to others.

Wrote Alexander Hamilton in The Federalist: "Cabal, intrigue and corruption, deadly adversaries of republican government, might naturally be expected to make their approaches from more than one quarter, but chiefly from the desire of foreign powers to gain an improper ascendant in our councils."

Rousseau believed that good laws lead to the making of better ones and that bad laws bring about worse.

GOOD NEWS

The consumers of the country got some good news from Washington the other day. It took the form of a report that the Administration has tentatively decided to request the repeal of a number of the federal retail excise taxes next year.

These levies -- which are precisely the same as sales taxes -- apply to such universally used articles as cosmetics, handbags, jewelry, fountain pens and so on. And it is an irony that most of them were passed on an emergency basis during World War II and the Korean War, and it was generally believed that they would end with those conflicts. But they are still on the books all these years later.

The apparent fact that the Administration's decision is described as tentative poses a question mark. And it is a question mark that should be eliminated. The articles involved cannot logically be classed as luxuries in our kind of society. Numbers of them are absolute necessities. As a matter of simple justice, repeal should have taken place long ago.

Washington reports say that the plan also calls for repeal of reduction of certain other special taxes. These are like the retail sales taxes which one government official described as "increasing the cost of doing business."

The reason given for the expected Administration move is that repeal would have a salutary effect on the economy at a time when it might be starting a downturn. That is important. But it is even more important that the government finally keep its word and relieve us of these "wartime emergency" burdens.

A BIG PORK BARREL

This nation's commercial transportation problems run a very wide gamut. One of them --and one which seems to be given much less attention than it deserves -- is found in the inland waterway system. Carriers on these waterways account for less than 10 per cent of the total intercity freight volume of the nation -- and nearly 90 per cent of the freight they do carry is not for the general shipping public. Instead, it consists of the traffic of companies hauling their own products.

Yet inland waterways have cost the government (that is, the taxpayers) more than $3 billion, and the bill during the current fiscal year for building, maintaining and operating the waterways will come to $200 million.

The late President Kennedy proposed that waterway users pay some of the heavy taxpayers demands that those who enjoy the benefits (of federal programs) should bear a greater share of the costs."

Legislation toward this end has been introduced in Congress. It is in no way punitive--the fuel tax would produce only about $8 million in fiscal 1965, a tiny fraction of the costs for which waterways are responsible. Yet it is opposed right down the line by waterway partisans who want to continue to enjoy huge taxpayer subsidies without contributing even a most modest amount to help pay for the facilities they use.

Who should be interested in this problem? Answer: Every taxpayer --YOU.

WHO NEEDS A SLIDE RULE FOR SIMPLE ARITHMETIC?

The very people responsible for what unemployment there is, try to duck the blame by clouding the case with big words, academic theories, falsehoods.

Employment comes from making goods and providing services that people want, at a cost people can afford.

Unemployment comes when the costs get so high that too few people can afford to buy.

High costs come from

1. Businessmen who won't keep their plants modern enough to help hold costs down.

2. Workers who demand more money without producing more, to earn it.

3. Taxes so high they restrict business (and individuals) and do not leave enough for managers to replace old high-cost equipment.

If government, labor and business joined forces, they could cure unemployment fast and forever.

Footnote: Employment is extremely high in this country. Unemployment is not as serious as some politicians would have you believe. We are actually importing sugar cane cutters from Barbados, secretaries from England, etc.

But any unemployment is hurtful and except for the handicapped, needless.

A NEW SIN

A few days ago, a Roman Catholic priest in Chicago called moving traffic violations "one of the new sins that have arisen since Moses received the Ten Commandments."

The Reverend John S. Banahan told a conclave of traffic judges, prosecutors and clergymen that he wished his parishioners would include their "traffic sins" in their confessions.

This is not a bad idea. It might encourage more drivers to stay alive long enough at least to get to church. They are hardly doing so now. The National Safety Council's latest semi-annual traffic accident data shows a 12 percent increase in the national traffic accident death rate. There were 21,280 victims in the first half of this year - 2,240 more than last year, and a new all time high, following the 1963 all time high, following the 1962 all time high, following the 1961 . . . and so on, ad nauseam.

It is not odd that in this country the people choose the automobile as their favorite weapon of aggression? Maybe the reformers who want to limit gun sales are shooting at the wrong target!

For ourselves, we would rather not limit anything that doesn't need limiting. But we can only agree with the insurance people who are calling for a more positive and intelligent method of driver qualification.

This plea was put in temperate and sensible language by Kemper Insurance in a recent "Call To Action" addressed to press and public. Pointing to the surprising frequency of accidents involving drinkers and young people, Kemper made the reasonable suggestion that there are some causes of accidents that merit immediate public consideration to be followed by whatever action seems necessary.

Something should certainly be done about the little - regarded fact that 30 percent of the drivers involved in accidents are in the "under-25" age group, which comprises only 17.7 percent of all drivers.

Something should certainly be done about the even less regarded fact that autopsies show alcohol in 48 percent to 60 percent (depending on the state) of all driver fatalities.

It is not inconceivable that irresponsible drivers may yet drive the rest of us off the road altogether - by economic pressure!

BANK ON FREEDOM

Over a relatively brief period of years, American banking has gone through a steady and meaningful evolution -- an evolution, in fact, which would seem actually revolutionary to the bankers and the bankers' customers at turn-of-the century times.

The upshot of this is what is called "full service" banking. It is precisely what the term implies. The "full service" bank provides the usual checking and savings accounts. Then it offers loans at low rates for practically any legitimate purpose -- home loans, auto loans, personal loans, business loans, and so on down a lengthly list. It recognizes -- as do the basic laws under which it operates -- that the intelligent use of credit keeps the wheels of industry and business turning and serves an essential need of American enterprise and the American family, which in turn compounds employment, production and earnings.

The success of "full service" banking is a matter of record. It has totally justified its existence. At the same time, its ability to fully meet the needs of the nation and the community is threatened by proposed laws which would impose limitations, some arbitrary and narrow, on its services. As an example, legislation would be applied to matters which should be determined and reconsidered from time to time by the bank supervisory agencies.

At the same time, most authorities agree that there is a need for a very different kind of legislation -- legislation that would modernize the lending authority of national banks and provide them with greater flexibility in meeting requests for loans. As an example here, there would be sound and moderate liberalization of the terms on which the banks concerned can make loans on forest tracts and on residential real estate.

The ability and will of the modern bank to serve every practical need have been proven. Given the freedom to operate under equitable legislation and regulation, they will move with flexibility and imagination to meet the changing financial needs of this growing nation.

DOCTOR, ARE YOU SURE?

The physical differences between the male and the female are much less pronounced in human beings than they are in birds and bees and animals, a Philadelphia anthropologist has concluded.

Perhaps one reason for this is that lady bees and birds may not wear slacks and crop their hair or feathers close and otherwise behave so much like gentlemen bees and birds.

And maybe boy bees and birds don't wear Beatle hairdos or featherdos which might tend to make them look like girl bees and birds, if girl bees and birds crop their hair or feathers.

Nevertheless, and without taking a thing away from the anthropological skills of the Philadelphia doctor, a lot of earnest girl watchers -- human girl watchers, that is -- are going to be surprised at what he says.

They are going to believe that he either needs new glasses or that he just hasn't been paying attention. -- P. J.

1925 FLORIDA BOOM

In 1925, after four years in the oil business in Arkansas, I had money to spare and made the wild Florida real estate boom everyone was talking about.

Prices around Tampa were lower than at Miami, so I bought 100 acres near Tampa placing $10,000 in escrow with a bank.

I liked the ridge country and went to Sebring. There I learned of Lake Childs, a round blue - water lake eight miles across, near what promised to be a future trans-state crossroads.

A large turpentine company owned a tract which included the entire coastline of Lake Childs and 300 acres of orange trees which proved it citrus growing land. I went to the company's Jacksonville office intending to pay substantial money for an option.

They had saved this tract while disposing of their other cutover land and were more interested in securing a good developer than in taking in cash. They contacted my references, set an attractive price and gave me a free 90 day option.

Soon a storm at Tampa, followed by a hurricane at Miami, exploded the over - inflated boom. I offered to surrender my option, but the company elected to extend it although I told them I had no prospective builders.

The investors who sold me the land North of Tampa began to litigate among themselves, clouding their title. The bank returned my $10,000 escrow money.

I left the wildest real estate boom up to that time losing little more than my modest expenses.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- There's a very good unadvertised reason why the Republican leadership has decided to take a tough stand on Vietnam.

In their secret policy meeting huddles, Republican Senators and Congressmen have agreed they have President Johnson over a barrel. They figure that Vietnam was a dead end for Eisenhower, and must be for Johnson. Eventually he will have to pull out.

When that happens they can point to their own loyal, unfailing support, then accuse LBJ of backing down despite that support. This is what the Republicans regard as a "tails-I-win, heads-you-lose" political proposition.

This type of thinking has pervaded all GOP unofficial discussion of the Vietnam crisis, though it hasn't been expressed in exactly those words.

When it comes to official discussion at GOP policy meetings, Sen. Dirksen of Illinois has taken the lead, has made somewhat the same statements as he has made publicly. It's at the informal discussions that the real strategy is talked about.

Dirksen was not present at the next to the last policy meeting, having been in the hospital. This was a luncheon meeting to which most Republican Senators were invited, including non-members of the committee. Bourke Hickenlooper, Iowa, as policy chairman, presided. He launched into an endorsement of the President's get - tough policy in Vietnam and was echoed by ten or twelve other Senators. Not one disagreed, not even Jack Javits, the New York Liberal who seldom agrees with Hickenlooper on anything.

Senators Karl Mundt, S. D., and Jack Miller, Iowa, grumbled about the insults the United States has been receiving from just about every two-bit nation. One of them pointed out that the United States had suffered forty to fifty affronts, including embassy-stonings and library-burnings, during the past year. Speaker after speaker expressed outrage.

Only skeptic was Roman Hruska of Nebraska who questioned whether the bomb damage in North Vietnam was as great as the Johnson administration claimed. Hruska was suspicious of Johnson's failure to release pictures of the targets.

"I would like to see some pictures of these so-called retaliatory attacks," he huffed. "I'd like to see exactly what the damage was."

--DIRKSEN'S REWARD--

As a result of the Republicans' official support for LBJ on Vietnam, the White House is giving Sen. Dirksen the green light on patronage. On Capitol Hill it's now said: "If you want a job from Johnson, talk to Dirksen."

The urbane senator from Illinois will have the appointment of two key vacancies on the Federal Power Commission and the Federal Communications Commission. The first will affect the gas and electricity rates for millions of housewives and American industry for some years to come.

The Federal Communications Commissioner will affect the crime programs seen by the children of American housewives for some years to come.

Presumbably the Vietnamese crisis will be over in less than a year.

Mrs. Wagner Gives Talk To W.S.C.S. At General Meet

Mrs. Joseph Wagner used the subject, "The Life Within", when she presented the program at the general meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church, Thursday, March 4.

"Be Still My Soul," was presented by Mrs. Joe Fox, soloist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Elmer Childress.

Mrs. Wagner emphasized four main points which individuals should observe in order to affect a spiritual renewal. First, the chief cornerstone of our faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. We need Jesus as our cornerstone in this hurried world as every age has needed him.

Second, we should understand the word of God as he speaks through the Bible. The Bible made of sixty-six books is the foundation of many cultures and much literature. One should find time to understand why each book was written and by whom. Religious literature as well as the Bible should be studied.

Third, the practice of his presence through prayer and worship is essential. We should pray more, praying in love and service for others.

Fourth, we need to discipline ourselves in our daily living. This includes our personal devotion, our duty to our church, our family, our job, our community, and our world.

A solo, "Take Time to Be Holy," by Mrs. Joe Fox closed the program.

ANN LANDERS

Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: In September I hired the daughter of a close friend to do secretarial work.

The girl can't spell, and she has never heard of the comma. She's a poor typist and can't handle the telephone properly. She came in late three mornings last week and took double lunch hours.

This young lady's father has done me many favors and I value his friendship. I'm sure he would be unhappy if I fired her. He believes she is brilliant and has told me repeatedly that she loves her job. Please answer in the paper. The dumbbell opens my mail. -- IN A SPOT

Dear Spot: You are paying a girl who can't spell, type or handle the phone; a girl who comes in late and takes double lunch hours -- and you call her a dumbbell?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I saw your picture in the paper. You were wearing a cap and gown and receiving an honorary degree from Morningside College in Iowa. You look like a college senior.

Several months ago my mother and I had an argument over you. She didn't believe me when I told her I had read somewhere you had had your face lifted. I showed her that picture and she said, "Maybe it's true."

Do you have the nerve to print this letter and your answer?-- ALEXANDRIA

Dear Alex: The camera can be a woman's best friend or her worst enemy. Angles, lighting, shadows, (not to mention retouching) can add or subtract 20 years. The Associated Press and the United Press International cameras were especially kind to me on that memorable day.

Face-lifting is fine for those who, for professional or purely personal reasons, feel that a youthful appearance is absolutely essential. I don't -- and when my face falls, I'm going to let it lie there.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman going with a wonderful man who lost his wife five years ago.

Mr. Marvelous wants me to marry him, but one thing is holding me back. He is critical of my children. Debbie is 5 and Randy is 7. They are energetic and highspirited.

I insist that the children be included in evening activities, particularly cultural ones. In my opinion it is more important for children to see an opera than to be in bed by 7:00 p.m. I believe, too, that children should be taken to poetry readings and lectures so they can learn how to conduct themselves in public.

Mr. Marvelous does not agree. He becomes upset when Debbie and Randy misbehave or become restless.

I love this man and the children adore him in spite of his strict attitudes, but I'm afraid he will be too hard on them. Please advise. -- V. Q. Z.

Dear V. Q. Z.: If you are smart you'll grab Mr. Marvelous -- he sounds too good to be true. Furthermore his ideas are far more sensible than yours.

Five and seven-year-olds don't belong out at night -- whether it be opera, adult lectures or poetry readings. Youngsters often misbehave because they are tired and bored. Marry this man and accept his help. Your children need it.

"The Bride's Guide," ANN LANDERS' booklet, gives authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope and 35¢ in coin.

Mrs. Wagner Gives Talk To W.S.C.S. At General Meet

Mrs. Joseph Wagner used the subject, "The Life Within", when she presented the program at the general meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church, Thursday, March 4.

"Be Still My Soul," was presented by Mrs. Joe Fox, soloist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Elmer Childress.

Mrs. Wagner emphasized four main points which individuals should observe in order to affect a spiritual renewal. First, the chief cornerstone of our faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. We need Jesus as our cornerstone in this hurried world as every age has needed him.

Second, we should understand the word of God as he speaks through the Bible. The Bible made of sixty-six books is the foundation of many cultures and much literature. One should find time to understand why each book was written and by whom. Religious literature as well as the Bible should be studied.

Third, the practice of his presence through prayer and worship is essential. We should pray more, praying in love and service for others.

Fourth, we need to discipline ourselves in our daily living. This includes our personal devotion, our duty to our church, our family, our job, our community, and our world.

A solo, "Take Time to Be Holy," by Mrs. Joe Fox closed the program.

Mrs. Robert Dempster, president of the W.S.C.S., conducted the business meeting. Announcements were made at this time.

The Tanner Street Church of God will be host to the World Day of Prayer to be held at 2 p.m. with Rev. Joseph Wagner as speaker. All in the community are invited.

Mantle Hopes To Return To Center

The New york Yankees are looking for a center fielder and their new leadoff hitter hopes to win the job during his 10-game trial. Win or lose, he won't have any trouble making the club.

Mickey Mantle seconded Manager Johnny Keane's proposal Monday for a center-field runoff with Roger Maris in the Yankees' first 20 exhibition games. Then Mickey explained why he'd like to return to the position he played for 13 years before quitting it late last season because of his battered knees.

"I think center field is easier to play," Mantle said. "There is more running but it is on a straight line. You just go as far as you can wherever the ball is hit. In right field, there is more quick stopping and that's what I don't like to have to do."

Keane, who has problems 19 other major league pilots would like to have, said he intends to play Mantle in center field for 10 games, then move him to right -- with Maris switching to center.

"I want to see which way is best for the team," Keane said, "after 20 games, I believe I'll know, and the one who is in center after that time will be the center fielder."

Mantle will bat first and Maris second in exhibition games, Keane's idea being to give both sluggers more plate appearances and still rest them in the late innings.

While the Yankees were busy plotting spring strategems, the New York Mets were trying -- unsuccessfully -- to bring outfielder Joe Christopher into the fold. Christopher, a .300 hitter in 1964 and the first Met holdout since Mary Throneberry balked two years ago, met with club Vice President Johnny Murphy for four hours but stuck to his bid for a 100 per cent pay hike to $20,000.

There were optimistic reports from Pompano Beach, Fla., where Frank Howard and Willie Kirkland blasted long home runs in the Washington Senators' intra - squad game, and from Casa Grande, Ariz., where San Francisco's Jack Sanford pitched for the first time since his arm operation last July.

The Pittsburgh Pirates received word that outfield ace Roberto Clemente, recovering from malaria at his home in Puerto Rico, has lost 20 pounds but should be able to join the club at Fort Myers, Fla., later this month.

Roland M. Hoerr Jr. of St. Louis has been named state chairman to direct the 1965 National Wildlife Week observance in Missouri for the Conservation Federation of Missouri, which joins with the National Wildlife Federation in sponsoring the annual conservation education project during the period of March 14-20, and throughout 1965.

National Wildlife Week is held each year during the week in which the first day of spring occurs, and was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938. Since that time National Wildlife Week has served to focus public attention on the importance of natural resource conservation and highlights specific conservation issues.

This year the theme will be POLLUTION ABATEMENT and the slogan is "FIGHT DIRTY WATER." Positive steps which can be taken by citizens and government agencies on the local, state, and the National level to control or eliminate pollution of all kinds will be emphasized during the 1965 observance, according to Roland M. Hoerr Jr.

Individuals and organizations interested in cooperating with the Conservation Federation of Missouri in this important effort to encourage all citizens to learn what they can do to prevent and control all forms of pullution are urged to contact: Mr. Roland M. Hoerr Jr. of 389 North Mosley Road, St. Louis for further information.

"By 1980 -- only 15 years from now -- America will need 600 billion gallons of water each day," says Roland M. Hoerr Jr. "By the year 2,000, we will need a trillion gallons daily. It would take a tank car train 600,000 miles long to haul it. But unless we can find a cheap way to convert salt water to fresh, hydrologists estimate our maximum fresh water supply will be only 650 billion gallons a day."

The Missouri Wildlife Week chairman emphasized the fact that with this increasing demand for fresh water, the only answer is to re-use existing water supplies. "Some authorities say we will need to re-use our water six times by 1970," he said. "This is the reason water pollution control is the most important conservation program in America today."

"We urge every citizen of this state to put our slogan "FIGHT DIRTY WATER" into practice, "Roland M. Hoerr Jr. proclaimed. "Wastes from our homes, factories, farms, boats and numerous other sources are reducing our supplies of usable water. First we must invest more money in city and industrial water treatment plants. Second, we need more research to find better ways to treat water so that it can be re-used and re-used to meet our growing needs. Finally, we must support strong anti-pollution laws for our rivers, streams and lakes."

National Wildlife Week, sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation and its state affiliates, such as the Conservation Federation of Missouri has been held each year since 1952.

It was school as usual yesterday at Buffalo high school, even though its basketball team won the Class M Missouri high title for the second year in a row.

The hard - driving Buffalo team rolled up a 65-49 victory over undefeated California Saturday night at Columbia to repeat as the Class M champion.

There was a dinner for the victorious team Sunday night and there will be a more formal dinner affair later.

Plans are for a parade and a ceremony at the city square some time this week.

This is the third state title a Buffalo team has won in the 21 years Mallory has been superintendent. The first was in 1949.

Doug Sanders, who won $10,000 at Pensacola by whipping Nicklaus in a playoff, is the leading money-winner with $16,332.78. He made it by playing in six tournaments and finishing in the top five twice.

Sisler To Put on His Own Brand

TAMPA, Fla. AP -- Dick Sisler anxiously pulled the strings last summer for a man no longer physically able to handle the job. He brought the Cincinnati Reds home tied for second, missing the pennant by one game.

As a reward for his conscientious work, Sisler was named manager of the Reds in October, a few months before the tragic death of Fred Hutchinson due to cancer.

Sisler faces the future with mixed emotions, deeply respectful to the memory of Hutchinson, but intent on putting his own stamp on the ball club.

"All of us who were on the staff still can see Hutch standing in the dugout or sitting in the office. We'll never forget. But little by little those thoughts gradually will slip away. All of us have a job to do.

"I managed on my own last year after Hutch finally had to step down. But I didn't set down the rules. I could change the rotation and I did because Hutch was in no position to do it. I don't know how in the world a man could break in under more distressing conditions."

Sisler has given a great deal of thought to his plans for managing the Reds, with the help of a solid, loyal staff.

"I've seen some rules work one place and not work in others," he said. "The important thing is to back up your rules. I don't mind if a fellow wants to take a drink of a couple of beers. But if they go beyond to the extreme, they hurt the majority of the others."

For years Dick was judged by the impossible standards set by his father, George Sisler, en route to the Hall of Fame. It was difficult to persuade people to rate him on his own merits.

"The first couple of years I worried a lot about it," he said. "It was worse on me than on my brothers because I was a hitter. I found out in a hurry I would never match my dad in running, fielding or hitting. I had to make up my mind to go out and do the best I could on my own and forget about any comparisons.

"I often have thought: wouldn't it be something if I could manage in the big leagues and manage better than my dad?"

George Sisler, who soon will be 72, managed the old St. Louis Browns from 1924 to 1926. He didn't win any pennants.

Princeton Wins Crucial Game

Michigan, with Cazzie Russell on the bench, lost one that really didn't matter and Princeton, with Bill Bradley in the drivers' seat, won one that mattered very much, indeed.

The mighty Wolverines, the nation's top - ranked college basketball team, found themselves assured of the Big Ten title and the accompanying NCAA tourney berth and had All - America Russell ailing going into Monday night's regular - season windup with Ohio State.

So Coach Dave Strack sat Russell on the bench. Result- a 93-85 Ohio State upset, the top game in a scattering of regular-season activity.

Princeton, meanwhile, got a typical clutch performance from Bradley, Player of the Year and a two - time All-America, in edging Penn State 60-58 and leading the advance of five teams through first-round activity in the far-flung NCAA tourney.

Bradley, who had 22 points, six assists and nine rebounds scored six clutch points in the last 2 1/2 minutes as the Tigers held off Penn State in the first game of a tripleheader at Philadelphia, with all winners advancing to the semis of the East regional tourney.

Nationally third - ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., had its hands full and had to come from behind for a 67-61 triumph over Connecticut while Providence romped over West Virginia 91-67 in the other two.

At Lubbock, Tex., Houston edged Notre Dame 99-98 in overtime as Ed Winch dropped in two free throws with six seconds left and Oklahoma City nipped Colorado State 70-68 on Charlie Hunter's jump shot in the final second. That put Houston in the Midwest regional semis and Oklahoma City in the West semis.

Meanwhile, the tourney field was completed in playoffs at Waco, Tex., and Dayton, Ohio, to determine the Southwest and Mid - America Conference representatives. Southern Methodist took Texas 80-78 at Waco and Ohio held off Miami of Ohio, 76-71 at Dayton.

That made the line-up for the NCAA regionals, all Friday and Saturday, with the latest rankings and season records, now read:

East, at College Park, Md.- North Carolina State 20-4 vs. Princeton 20-5, and No. 4 Providence 23-1 vs. No. 3 St. Joseph's, Pa. 26-1.

Mideast, at Lexington, Ky. -- No. 1 Michigan 21-3 vs. winner of tonight's Ohio U.-Dayton game, and No. 5 Vanderbilt 23-3 vs. winner of tonight's Eastern Kentucky - DePaul game.

Midwest, at Manhattan, Kan. -- Oklahoma State 19-6 vs. Houston 19-8, and Southern Methodist 16-9 vs. Wichita 19-7.

West, at Provo, Utah - San Francisco 23-4 vs. Oklahoma City 20-9, and No. 10 Brigham Young 21-5 vs. No. 2 UCLA 24-2.

Russell, the 6-foot-6 backcourt ace of the nation's top-ranked team, was suffering from a virus and had a fever of 101 when game time came against Ohio State.

He didn't play and the Wolverines suffered their third loss of the season -- their first in the Big Ten. The other two losses were by one point, to St. John's and Nebraska.

No. 5 Vanderbilt also closed out its regular season play with a 106-69 romp over Louisiana State.

Buffalo Within One Game Of Clinching Berth

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- Other teams leave their hearts and take their victories from San Francisco. But the National Basketball Association squad that calls Civic Auditorium home would rather just leave.

The San Francisco Warriors now have lost 13 straight there since last Dec. 20, including an 111-102 thrashing Monday night by the Baltimore Bullets.

The Warriors, defending Western Division champions, proudly moved from the Cow Palace into their new home at the start of this season and lost the first nine games they played there.

In handing San Francisco its 36th loss in the last 40 games, the Bullets moved to within a game of clinching third place and the last playoff spot in the Western Division.

Poplar Bluff Loses First Round

The difference in the game was DeSoto's accuracy from the free throw line. Although out-scored from the field, 18-14, the Dragons canned 15 of 22 charity tosses, including ten in the final quarter.

DeSoto, which led at half, 23-22, emerged from the game with a 20-8 record. Poplar Bluff wound up 21-4.

DeSoto will meet the winner of Monday night's Lutheran South-Beaumont game in the state quarter-finals at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday night at Washington University' Field House.

Pancho, Unc's Weapon For Davis Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Pancho Gonzales, the Fox, again may be Uncle Sam's secret weapon in the campaign to win back the Davis Cup.

"I'll admit I'm leaning toward Pancho as our coach," the new Davis Cup tennis captain, George MacCall, said today in announcing his early plans. "A lot will depend on whether he is available."

Gonzales, the former pro king who is said to have the finest tactical mind in the sport, is credited largely with America's success in winning the Cup from Australia in 1958 and 1963.

"I am considering some other coaches, too," MacCall added.

"We're going to get the best man we can and make every effort to win the Cup. This is not an experimental year. This is an all-out year."

In New York Monday to meet the press, the 46-year-old MacCall, an insurance executive and club player in Los Angeles who once was an Air Force navigator, was promised the full support of the USLTA.

MacCall said he would assemble his first squad in mid-May —a four-man squad consisting of top-ranked Dennis Ralston, Frank Foehling III, Ron Holmberg and 18-year-old Cliff Richey.

These four will wage an extended European campaign, starting with the French championships in May and ending with Wimbledon in July.

"We are considering several other boys who aren't available for this trip," the captain said.

The United States' first match will be against Canada in mid-May. If successful, the Yanks then likely will go against Mexico at Mexico City, the European champion in Europe and, if still going, the Australians in Sydney after Christmas.

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) -- This southern Indiana city was ablaze with basketball excitement today in preparing to cheer its unbeaten darlings, the Evansville Purple Aces, to a second straight NCAA College Division championship.

The quarter-finals open in the ultra-modern, 13,000 - seat Roberts Stadium Wednesday afternoon. The semifinals are Thursday night and the champion will be crowned Friday night.

Oklahome State Headed For First Time As Champion

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Big Eight teams have won 52 games in NCAA play, more than any other conference in the nation. Big Ten teams have won 51 games. The Big Eight's 52-35 mark is close to 60 per cent, one of the better winning percentages, and it has had nine finalists and three champions.

This includes Oklahoma State's seven NCAA trips before it joined the league, and all seven Colorado trips, three before it joined.

The OSU victory Monday night was the 719th of Iba's career. Two more in the NCAA will put him ahead of Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, now leading the nation's active coaches in career victories. Rupp's team has ended the season.

In other season-closing games Monday night, Kansas State beat Nebraska 79-67 at Lincoln for its first league road victory all season, and Iowa State clipped Missouri 78-65 at Ames. This left Missouri and Colorado tied for third at 8-6, Iowa State fifth at 6-8 and K-State and Nebraska tied for sixth, both with 5-9. Oklahoma was last with 3-11.

Bob Ziegler hit 29 and Al Koch 21 for Iowa State. Missouri could make only eight of 50 field shots the last half. George Flamank had 18 points, 18 rebounds for Missouri.

Connecticut State Continues Long String

KANSAS CITY (AP) --Every year for seven in a row, Central Connecticut State has come to the week-long NAIA basketball tournament and stayed only one day.

Augsburg, Minn. College cut the Connecticut team's visit short Monday night, knocking out the team from New Britain, 107-87.

Augsburg and Central Connecticut players were almost alone in Municipal Auditorium when the game finally ended after midnight.

The game was the final one on an opening day's program of eight contests.

Other seeded teams dropping first round games were Central Washington State, Transylvania of Kentucky and Northern Michigan.

Two seeded teams, Oklahoma Baptist and St. Benedict's, Kan., summoned last minute rallies to remain in the running.

BOSTON (AP)--Captain Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics says he owes his National Basketball Association Player of the Year award to his teammates.

For the fourth time in five years and fifth time over-all Russell has been named the league's MVP by the votes of member athletes.

"I may sound corny," Russell said Monday, "but the simple truth of the matter is that I owe this award to my teammates. They have made this the best year I have ever had."

Sisler To Put on His Own Brand

TAMPA, Fla. AP -- Dick Sisler anxiously pulled the strings last summer for a man no longer physically able to handle the job. He brought the Cincinnati Reds home tied for second, missing the pennant by one game.

As a reward for his conscientious work, Sisler was named manager of the Reds in October, a few months before the tragic death of Fred Hutchinson due to cancer.

Sisler faces the future with mixed emotions, deeply respectful to the memory of Hutchinson, but intent on putting his own stamp on the ball club.

"All of us who were on the staff still can see Hutch standing in the dugout or sitting in the office. We'll never forget. But little by little those thoughts gradually will slip away. All of us have a job to do.

"I managed on my own last year after Hutch finally had to step down. But I didn't set down the rules. I could change the rotation and I did because Hutch was in no position to do it. I don't know how in the world a man could break in under more distressing conditions."

Sisler has given a great deal of thought to his plans for managing the Reds, with the help of a solid, loyal staff.

"I've seen some rules work one place and not work in others," he said. "The important thing is to back up your rules. I don't mind if a fellow wants to take a drink of a couple of beers. But if they go beyond to the extreme, they hurt the majority of the others."

For years Dick was judged by the impossible standards set by his father, George Sisler, en route to the Hall of Fame. It was difficult to persuade people to rate him on his own merits.

"The first couple of years I worried a lot about it," he said. "It was worse on me than on my brothers because I was a hitter. I found out in a hurry I would never match my dad in running, fielding or hitting. I had to make up my mind to go out and do the best I could on my own and forget about any comparisons.

"I often have thought: wouldn't it be something if I could manage in the big leagues and manage better than my dad?"

George Sisler, who soon will be 72, managed the old St. Louis Browns from 1924 to 1926. He didn't win any pennants.

Princeton Wins Crucial Game

Michigan, with Cazzie Russell on the bench, lost one that really didn't matter and Princeton, with Bill Bradley in the drivers' seat, won one that mattered very much, indeed.

The mighty Wolverines, the nation's top - ranked college basketball team, found themselves assured of the Big Ten title and the accompanying NCAA tourney berth and had All - America Russell ailing going into Monday night's regular - season windup with Ohio State.

So Coach Dave Strack sat Russell on the bench. Result- a 93-85 Ohio State upset, the top game in a scattering of regular-season activity.

Princeton, meanwhile, got a typical clutch performance from Bradley, Player of the Year and a two - time All-America, in edging Penn State 60-58 and leading the advance of five teams through first-round activity in the far-flung NCAA tourney.

Bradley, who had 22 points, six assists and nine rebounds scored six clutch points in the last 2 1/2 minutes as the Tigers held off Penn State in the first game of a tripleheader at Philadelphia, with all winners advancing to the semis of the East regional tourney.

Nationally third - ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., had its hands full and had to come from behind for a 67-61 triumph over Connecticut while Providence romped over West Virginia 91-67 in the other two.

At Lubbock, Tex., Houston edged Notre Dame 99-98 in overtime as Ed Winch dropped in two free throws with six seconds left and Oklahoma City nipped Colorado State 70-68 on Charlie Hunter's jump shot in the final second. That put Houston in the Midwest regional semis and Oklahoma City in the West semis.

Meanwhile, the tourney field was completed in playoffs at Waco, Tex., and Dayton, Ohio, to determine the Southwest and Mid - America Conference representatives. Southern Methodist took Texas 80-78 at Waco and Ohio held off Miami of Ohio, 76-71 at Dayton.

That made the line-up for the NCAA regionals, all Friday and Saturday, with the latest rankings and season records, now read:

East, at College Park, Md.- North Carolina State 20-4 vs. Princeton 20-5, and No. 4 Providence 23-1 vs. No. 3 St. Joseph's, Pa. 26-1.

Mideast, at Lexington, Ky. -- No. 1 Michigan 21-3 vs. winner of tonight's Ohio U.-Dayton game, and No. 5 Vanderbilt 23-3 vs. winner of tonight's Eastern Kentucky - DePaul game.

Midwest, at Manhattan, Kan. -- Oklahoma State 19-6 vs. Houston 19-8, and Southern Methodist 16-9 vs. Wichita 19-7.

West, at Provo, Utah - San Francisco 23-4 vs. Oklahoma City 20-9, and No. 10 Brigham Young 21-5 vs. No. 2 UCLA 24-2.

Russell, the 6-foot-6 backcourt ace of the nation's top-ranked team, was suffering from a virus and had a fever of 101 when game time came against Ohio State.

He didn't play and the Wolverines suffered their third loss of the season -- their first in the Big Ten. The other two losses were by one point, to St. John's and Nebraska.

No. 5 Vanderbilt also closed out its regular season play with a 106-69 romp over Louisiana State.

Buffalo Within One Game Of Clinching Berth

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- Other teams leave their hearts and take their victories from San Francisco. But the National Basketball Association squad that calls Civic Auditorium home would rather just leave.

The San Francisco Warriors now have lost 13 straight there since last Dec. 20, including an 111-102 thrashing Monday night by the Baltimore Bullets.

The Warriors, defending Western Division champions, proudly moved from the Cow Palace into their new home at the start of this season and lost the first nine games they played there.

In handing San Francisco its 36th loss in the last 40 games, the Bullets moved to within a game of clinching third place and the last playoff spot in the Western Division.

Poplar Bluff Loses First Round

The difference in the game was DeSoto's accuracy from the free throw line. Although out-scored from the field, 18-14, the Dragons canned 15 of 22 charity tosses, including ten in the final quarter.

DeSoto will meet the winner of Monday night's Lutheran South-Beaumont game in the state quarter-finals at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday night at Washington University' Field House.

Pancho, Unc's Weapon For Davis Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Pancho Gonzales, the Fox, again may be Uncle Sam's secret weapon in the campaign to win back the Davis Cup.

"I'll admit I'm leaning toward Pancho as our coach," the new Davis Cup tennis captain, George MacCall, said today in announcing his early plans. "A lot will depend on whether he is available."

Gonzales, the former pro king who is said to have the finest tactical mind in the sport, is credited largely with America's success in winning the Cup from Australia in 1958 and 1963.

"I am considering some other coaches, too," MacCall added.

"We're going to get the best man we can and make every effort to win the Cup. This is not an experimental year. This is an all-out year."

In New York Monday to meet the press, the 46-year-old MacCall, an insurance executive and club player in Los Angeles who once was an Air Force navigator, was promised the full support of the USLTA.

MacCall said he would assemble his first squad in mid-May —a four-man squad consisting of top-ranked Dennis Ralston, Frank Foehling III, Ron Holmberg and 18-year-old Cliff Richey.

These four will wage an extended European campaign, starting with the French championships in May and ending with Wimbledon in July.

"We are considering several other boys who aren't available for this trip," the captain said.

The United States' first match will be against Canada in mid-May. If successful, the Yanks then likely will go against Mexico at Mexico City, the European champion in Europe and, if still going, the Australians in Sydney after Christmas.

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) -- This southern Indiana city was ablaze with basketball excitement today in preparing to cheer its unbeaten darlings, the Evansville Purple Aces, to a second straight NCAA College Division championship.

The quarter-finals open in the ultra-modern, 13,000 - seat Roberts Stadium Wednesday afternoon. The semifinals are Thursday night and the champion will be crowned Friday night.

Oklahome State Headed For First Time As Champion

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Big Eight teams have won 52 games in NCAA play, more than any other conference in the nation. Big Ten teams have won 51 games. The Big Eight's 52-35 mark is close to 60 per cent, one of the better winning percentages, and it has had nine finalists and three champions.

This includes Oklahoma State's seven NCAA trips before it joined the league, and all seven Colorado trips, three before it joined.

The OSU victory Monday night was the 719th of Iba's career. Two more in the NCAA will put him ahead of Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, now leading the nation's active coaches in career victories. Rupp's team has ended the season.

In other season-closing games Monday night, Kansas State beat Nebraska 79-67 at Lincoln for its first league road victory all season, and Iowa State clipped Missouri 78-65 at Ames. This left Missouri and Colorado tied for third at 8-6, Iowa State fifth at 6-8 and K-State and Nebraska tied for sixth, both with 5-9. Oklahoma was last with 3-11.

Bob Ziegler hit 29 and Al Koch 21 for Iowa State. Missouri could make only eight of 50 field shots the last half. George Flamank had 18 points, 18 rebounds for Missouri.

Connecticut State Continues Long String

KANSAS CITY (AP) --Every year for seven in a row, Central Connecticut State has come to the week-long NAIA basketball tournament and stayed only one day.

Augsburg, Minn. College cut the Connecticut team's visit short Monday night, knocking out the team from New Britain, 107-87.

Augsburg and Central Connecticut players were almost alone in Municipal Auditorium when the game finally ended after midnight.

The game was the final one on an opening day's program of eight contests.

Augsburg, seeded ninth, came to the tournament with a 24-3 record and is one of four seeded teams surviving a rough first day.

Other seeded teams dropping first round games were Central Washington State, Transylvania of Kentucky and Northern Michigan.

Two seeded teams, Oklahoma Baptist and St. Benedict's, Kan., summoned last minute rallies to remain in the running.

BOSTON (AP)--Captain Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics says he owes his National Basketball Association Player of the Year award to his teammates.

For the fourth time in five years and fifth time over-all Russell has been named the league's MVP by the votes of member athletes.

"I may sound corny," Russell said Monday, "but the simple truth of the matter is that I owe this award to my teammates. They have made this the best year I have ever had."

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

APPORTIONMENT HEADACHE IS A CONTINUING PROBLEM

The General Assembly has a variety of proposals to deal with the sticky problem of reapportioning the state in compliance with rulings by the U. S. Supreme Court. And, there are some legislators, notably speaker Tom Graham, bent on putting off any definite action as long as possible.

Among proposals to handle the situation are ones which would increase the House membership to 170; provide for staggered 4 - year terms; weighted voting, etc.

A recent study of the situation has just been completed by the research staff at the School of Business and Publication Administration at the University of Missouri. Authors of the article are two research assistants, David Leuthold and Carlyle Dewey.

Leuthold and Dewey note that the problem of reapportioning the Missouri Senate is much less of a burden than that of the House.

At present, Missouri is divided into 34 senatorial districts while membership in the House comes from every county plus multiple membership for the more populated centers. The Missouri set up often is referred to as a "little federal system."

The authors of the article point out two alternatives to the reapportionment headache. One would be to divide out-state areas into equitable single-member districts by drawing new boundaries to replace county lines.

The second would retain present county boundaries but would group the smaller counties together to determine representation.

Historically, the article points out, the multi-member district has been in use at varying times since the 13th century in England. And, later most American colonies and states adopted this form of determining representation.

Leuthold and Dewey indicate that Missouri is among a minority of nine states which today elects members of both houses by single- member districts only. The authors note that multi - member districts make reapportionment easier because there would be no need to redraw political boundaries.

"Often times apportionment may be readjusted by simply adding or subtracting a member from a district or by transferring an entire county into or out of the district," they wrote.

EFFORTS RENEWED FOR ETV FIGHT

Once again, the Missouri legislature is being asked to give serious consideration to a proposed state-supported educational television network which at the outset, many feel, would serve the purpose of bringing the state closer to 20th century educational practices.

This year, the ETV bill is sponsored by Rep. Robert E. Young of Jasper County, who appears to be fighting actively behind the scenes to get his bill out of committee where it now is lodged.

During the 1963 legislative session, a similar effort was made but the matter failed to get out of committee, ostensibly because of the tremendous cost involved.

Basically, Young's ETV proposal calls for creation within the Department of Education a division of Educational Television. Established over a 10-year period, the total cost is estimated at $16,000,000 with $1,500,000 being expended during the first year of operation.

"It is our view that only through the 20th Century electronic miracle of television can we hope to broaden the education opportunity at the elementary and high school level throughout the state as much as it needs to be broadened," Young stated.

However, proponents of ETV do not regard it as a substitute for the classroom teacher. "We feel that ETV complements the work of the classroom teacher, especially in such areas as science and language at the elementary level," Young said.

Young noted that 29 states already have educational television programs in process while numerous others have the matter under serious consideration. "Missouri is the only state which doesn't have a commission to work in this field," Young added.

SLOW DRIVER ATTACKED

The Missouri Senate, with its eye on highway safety and Missouri's continually spiraling fatality log, has passed and sent on to the House a measure aimed at ridding state highways of the slow poke driver.

The bill provides for a minimum speed limit of 40 miles per hour on divided highways which are part of the federal interstate set - up. Violation would be a misdemeanor offense.

BILL DEADLINE

Majority Floor Leader Rep. H. F. (Pat) Patterson of Columbia has indicated he will sponsor a resolution setting March 18 as the deadline for bill introductions. An earlier date is expected in the Senate.

GOVERNOR SIGNS FIRST BILL—Governor Warren E. Hearnes March 3 signed the first piece of legislation to reach his desk during the 73rd General Assembly—a bill to guarantee payment of local costs near impoundments and dams built by the federal government. The bill, which affects many areas of the state awaiting construction of dams, received speedy treatment in the House and Senate. Behind Governor Hearnes are sponsors of the bill looking on in a ceremonial signing conducted in the large reception room of the Governor's office.

TUBERCULOSIS STUDY

33. Recommendation:

That a thorough study be made of the facilities and programs for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis at the State Sanatorium and the tuberculosis hospitals of the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City; that the study include:

a. A survey of the current and predicted needs for tuberculosis hospital and clinical facilities.

b. The present program of reimbursement by the Division of Health to the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City for tuberculosis patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals.

The methods for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis have changed significantly in recent years. New drugs and techniques have reduced the length of stay in hospitals for tuberculosis patients. On the other hand, improved case-finding programs and broader definitions of tuberculosis and tuberculosis - related diseases have increased the number of tuberculosis cases. There is a clear need for a comprehensive survey of the current and predicted needs for tuberculosis hospital and clinical facilities on a statewide basis including the state sanatorium and the tuberculosis hospitals of the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City. The study could include: a census of tuberculosis cases in Missouri; the bed capacity of each tuberculosis hospital; the percentage of under or overcrowding in the hospitals; and the physical condition of hospital buildings, equipment, and other facilities. The study should be made by the Division of Health with the cooperation of all state and local agencies, public and private, whose functions are related to tuberculosis prevention and treatment.

The study should also give special attention to the present program of reimbursement by the Division of Health to the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City for the cost of treatment of patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals. By statute, the state pays $17.50 per week for hospitalization and $5.00 per visit for out - patient clinic treatment for each indigent patient treated by the municipal tuberculosis hospitals. The total reimbursement cost paid to both municipal hospitals by the state for 1961-63 was approximately $1,-200,000.

Recently a question has been raised as to the reliability of the examinations for tuberculosis given by the two city tuberculosis hospitals. A study made in 1963 of one of the municipal tuberculosis hospitals by an outside medical consultant revealed that of 130 patients, 45 patients or over 34% were inactive or quiescent tuberculosis cases which could be cared for either in a hospital for the chronically ill or in nursing or private homes. If the state is to continue this program of reimbursement it would appear that a detailed study and review should be made of the standards and procedures governing the medical examination and hospitalization of indigent patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals.

SURVEY OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S SERVICE

34. Recommendation:

That a study be made of the feasibility of transferring the State Crippled Children's Service from the University of Missouri to the Division of Health.

The Board of Curators of the University of Missouri, by statute, is responsible for the supervision and administration of the State Crippled Children's Service. The major purpose of the Crippled Children's Service is to provide for the treatment and hospitalization of crippled children in designated hospitals throughout the state. A nursing program for case-finding and post - treatment cases is an important part of the Service's functions.

The Division of Health has a staff of qualified and trained medical doctors and public health nurses engaged in programs providing public health services to children. A careful study should be made of the present organization and administration of the Crippled Children's Service to determine whether its functions as a public health service agency should be located within the organization of the University of Missouri which is dedicated primarily to education and research. The study could also determine whether the administrative costs and possible duplication of personnel could be reduced by the transfer of the Crippled Children's Service to the proposed Division of Public Health.

The Hungry Millions

Editor's Note — People are living longer, but throughout the world the means to feed a growing population is diminishing. There is grave concern that the paradox could lead to chaos in but a few years. The following second of five articles outlines the phenomenon of the world's population growth in terms of the world's ability to feed its people.

Hungry Millions part 2

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Mankind has achieved a measure of death control, and the world's food problem becomes more critical every day.

The crisis is today, experts say. To avert catastrophe a relatively few years hence will require huge increases in food production.

Man has learned to control death through medicines and modern technology. Disasters no longer take tolls as heavy as in the past. Man even has achieved a balance of terror which is holding major war in check.

But world food production has failed to keep pace with the resultant population increase. Man now faces a cruel paradox. He has increased his numbers at a frightening rate and does not feed them adequately.

Today, the world's population is estimated at 3.3 billion. At the current rate of increase there will be 4.5 billion on earth in 20 years, and by the end of this century, 6 billion, of whom 4.5 billion will be in the poor, predominantly nonwhite countries.

Rich America is in no immediate danger from its population explosion. But the world the United States lives in faces serious dangers. For a third of the world, conditions have improved steadily and it gets richer. For two-thirds, conditions have deteriorated and it gets poorer.

Since 1959, world agricultural production has managed to keep up with the annual 2 per cent world population growth, but no more than keep up. There is little margin left, and where the need is greatest, the expansion of food production has been slower than the world average.

Experts estimate that by 1975 the world will need a 35 per cent increase in food production just to keep pace with present subsistence levels. Thus, man is like Wonderland's Alice on her treadmill, running faster and faster just to stay in one place. If the situation is to improve, the world will need, in reality, 50 per cent more food in a decade.

Dr. Binjay Ranjan Sen, director general of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, recently told the Royal Commonwealth Society in London that overpopulation is the root of the problem. Yet a country would not be consdiered overpopulated if it used its resources properly.

"With few exceptions there is not a country in the world which could not double and feed its population — if it had time," said Dr. Raymond Ewell, a food expert at the State University of New York in Buffalo.

But time is the big problem. India, for example, is likely to increase in population to 700 million in 15 years. She cannot possibly produce enough to feed 200 million extra mouths. Even the rich United States would have vast trouble nourishing 200 million added people.

Japan intensively cultivates the little land it has and gets enormous yields through efficient methods. India's land is inefficiently used.

Yet Japan is concerned about zooming population. It has increased 22 million since the end of World War II. She has no room for the prospective 15 million more which will be there by 1980 unless a birth control campaign which has been instituted in Japan applies a brake.

No figures are available for what has been happening in Communist China. It has had some improvement in production but not enough, probably, to keep step with population growth. Elsewhere in the East, food production has lagged.

Evidently Peking is concerned. t has called in Japanese family planning experts to examine the problem, an un-Marxist step. But China can see the light ahead only if her population stays at a level which can be sustained by her resources.

Chinese agriculture is hard pressed to keep step with population increases even now. In lean years of natural disaster, there were reports of famine. China has looked hungrily at other people's land, including even that of the Russians.

In the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe, adverse weather and Communist bureaucracy have interfered with production. In Latin America, food production per person declines steadily as the population explodes at the world's highest rates. As population goes up, so does demand for food, adding a new threat — inflation.

Death control compounds the problem. Experts warn that there will be steadily more older and working-age people competing economically. Population increases thus can gobble up economic improvement and prevent progress against the overall problem.

Economic development is a key to food problems, but death control interferes. Egypt, for example, when it completes the Aswan Dam project, hopes to have millions more acres to cultivate. But the rise in population could cancel out new production.

Production has increased greatly in North America and developed areas. But even if the United States were to undertake feeding the whole hungry world — which theoretically it might be able to do — there would be enormous economic and social problems in the way.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts that food deficit regions will gain only slightly in the years immediately ahead and will be obliged to make up differences in imports. By 1970, the chances are that America will have to provide at least half the deficit, mostly from her own enormous surpluses.

Next: Brother or comrade.

The best way to avoid that run-down feeling is to cross the street at the intersection.

Blustery Farewell

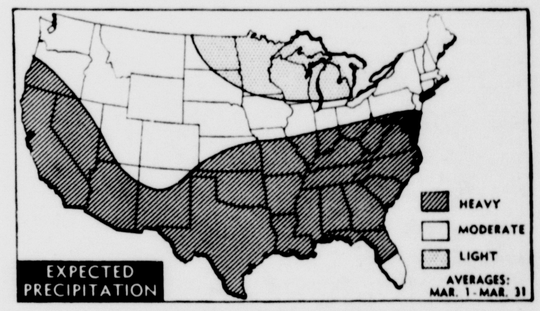
Unpleasant is the word to describe the country in March. Except for a belt running from coast to coast in the north, most temperatures will be below normal.



While the southern part of the nation and most of the Northwest receive heavy precipitation, the Northeast and part of the Midwest will see moderate dampness.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

APPORTIONMENT HEADACHE IS A CONTINUING PROBLEM

The General Assembly has a variety of proposals to deal with the sticky problem of reapportioning the state in compliance with rulings by the U. S. Supreme Court. And, there are some legislators, notably speaker Tom Graham, bent on putting off any definite action as long as possible.

Among proposals to handle the situation are ones which would increase the House membership to 170; provide for staggered 4 - year terms; weighted voting, etc.

A recent study of the situation has just been completed by the research staff at the School of Business and Publication Administration at the University of Missouri. Authors of the article are two research assistants, David Leuthold and Carlyle Dewey.

Leuthold and Dewey note that the problem of reapportioning the Missouri Senate is much less of a burden than that of the House.

At present, Missouri is divided into 34 senatorial districts while membership in the House comes from every county plus multiple membership for the more populated centers. The Missouri set up often is referred to as a "little federal system."

The authors of the article point out two alternatives to the reapportionment headache. One would be to divide out-state areas into equitable single-member districts by drawing new boundaries to replace county lines.

The second would retain present county boundaries but would group the smaller counties together to determine representation.

Historically, the article points out, the multi-member district has been in use at varying times since the 13th century in England. And, later most American colonies and states adopted this form of determining representation.

Leuthold and Dewey indicate that Missouri is among a minority of nine states which today elects members of both houses by single- member districts only. The authors note that multi - member districts make reapportionment easier because there would be no need to redraw political boundaries.

"Often times apportionment may be readjusted by simply adding or subtracting a member from a district or by transferring an entire county into or out of the district," they wrote.

EFFORTS RENEWED FOR ETV FIGHT

Once again, the Missouri legislature is being asked to give serious consideration to a proposed state-supported educational television network which at the outset, many feel, would serve the purpose of bringing the state closer to 20th century educational practices.

This year, the ETV bill is sponsored by Rep. Robert E. Young of Jasper County, who appears to be fighting actively behind the scenes to get his bill out of committee where it now is lodged.

During the 1963 legislative session, a similar effort was made but the matter failed to get out of committee, ostensibly because of the tremendous cost involved.

Basically, Young's ETV proposal calls for creation within the Department of Education a division of Educational Television. Established over a 10-year period, the total cost is estimated at $16,000,000 with $1,500,000 being expended during the first year of operation.

"It is our view that only through the 20th Century electronic miracle of television can we hope to broaden the education opportunity at the elementary and high school level throughout the state as much as it needs to be broadened," Young stated.

However, proponents of ETV do not regard it as a substitute for the classroom teacher. "We feel that ETV complements the work of the classroom teacher, especially in such areas as science and language at the elementary level," Young said.

Young noted that 29 states already have educational television programs in process while numerous others have the matter under serious consideration. "Missouri is the only state which doesn't have a commission to work in this field," Young added.

SLOW DRIVER ATTACKED

The Missouri Senate, with its eye on highway safety and Missouri's continually spiraling fatality log, has passed and sent on to the House a measure aimed at ridding state highways of the slow poke driver.

The bill provides for a minimum speed limit of 40 miles per hour on divided highways which are part of the federal interstate set - up. Violation would be a misdemeanor offense.

BILL DEADLINE

Majority Floor Leader Rep. H. F. (Pat) Patterson of Columbia has indicated he will sponsor a resolution setting March 18 as the deadline for bill introductions. An earlier date is expected in the Senate.

GOVERNOR SIGNS FIRST BILL—Governor Warren E. Hearnes March 3 signed the first piece of legislation to reach his desk during the 73rd General Assembly—a bill to guarantee payment of local costs near impoundments and dams built by the federal government. The bill, which affects many areas of the state awaiting construction of dams, received speedy treatment in the House and Senate. Behind Governor Hearnes are sponsors of the bill looking on in a ceremonial signing conducted in the large reception room of the Governor's office.

TUBERCULOSIS STUDY

33. Recommendation:

That a thorough study be made of the facilities and programs for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis at the State Sanatorium and the tuberculosis hospitals of the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City; that the study include:

a. A survey of the current and predicted needs for tuberculosis hospital and clinical facilities.

b. The present program of reimbursement by the Division of Health to the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City for tuberculosis patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals.

The methods for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis have changed significantly in recent years. New drugs and techniques have reduced the length of stay in hospitals for tuberculosis patients. On the other hand, improved case-finding programs and broader definitions of tuberculosis and tuberculosis - related diseases have increased the number of tuberculosis cases. There is a clear need for a comprehensive survey of the current and predicted needs for tuberculosis hospital and clinical facilities on a statewide basis including the state sanatorium and the tuberculosis hospitals of the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City. The study could include: a census of tuberculosis cases in Missouri; the bed capacity of each tuberculosis hospital; the percentage of under or overcrowding in the hospitals; and the physical condition of hospital buildings, equipment, and other facilities. The study should be made by the Division of Health with the cooperation of all state and local agencies, public and private, whose functions are related to tuberculosis prevention and treatment.

The study should also give special attention to the present program of reimbursement by the Division of Health to the City of Saint Louis and Kansas City for the cost of treatment of patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals. By statute, the state pays $17.50 per week for hospitalization and $5.00 per visit for out - patient clinic treatment for each indigent patient treated by the municipal tuberculosis hospitals. The total reimbursement cost paid to both municipal hospitals by the state for 1961-63 was approximately $1,-200,000.

Recently a question has been raised as to the reliability of the examinations for tuberculosis given by the two city tuberculosis hospitals. A study made in 1963 of one of the municipal tuberculosis hospitals by an outside medical consultant revealed that of 130 patients, 45 patients or over 34% were inactive or quiescent tuberculosis cases which could be cared for either in a hospital for the chronically ill or in nursing or private homes. If the state is to continue this program of reimbursement it would appear that a detailed study and review should be made of the standards and procedures governing the medical examination and hospitalization of indigent patients in the municipal tuberculosis hospitals.

SURVEY OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S SERVICE

34. Recommendation:

That a study be made of the feasibility of transferring the State Crippled Children's Service from the University of Missouri to the Division of Health.

The Board of Curators of the University of Missouri, by statute, is responsible for the supervision and administration of the State Crippled Children's Service. The major purpose of the Crippled Children's Service is to provide for the treatment and hospitalization of crippled children in designated hospitals throughout the state. A nursing program for case-finding and post - treatment cases is an important part of the Service's functions.

The Division of Health has a staff of qualified and trained medical doctors and public health nurses engaged in programs providing public health services to children. A careful study should be made of the present organization and administration of the Crippled Children's Service to determine whether its functions as a public health service agency should be located within the organization of the University of Missouri which is dedicated primarily to education and research. The study could also determine whether the administrative costs and possible duplication of personnel could be reduced by the transfer of the Crippled Children's Service to the proposed Division of Public Health.

The Hungry Millions

Editor's Note — People are living longer, but throughout the world the means to feed a growing population is diminishing. There is grave concern that the paradox could lead to chaos in but a few years. The following second of five articles outlines the phenomenon of the world's population growth in terms of the world's ability to feed its people.

Hungry Millions part 2

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Mankind has achieved a measure of death control, and the world's food problem becomes more critical every day.

The crisis is today, experts say. To avert catastrophe a relatively few years hence will require huge increases in food production.

Man has learned to control death through medicines and modern technology. Disasters no longer take tolls as heavy as in the past. Man even has achieved a balance of terror which is holding major war in check.

But world food production has failed to keep pace with the resultant population increase. Man now faces a cruel paradox. He has increased his numbers at a frightening rate and does not feed them adequately.

Today, the world's population is estimated at 3.3 billion. At the current rate of increase there will be 4.5 billion on earth in 20 years, and by the end of this century, 6 billion, of whom 4.5 billion will be in the poor, predominantly nonwhite countries.

Rich America is in no immediate danger from its population explosion. But the world the United States lives in faces serious dangers. For a third of the world, conditions have improved steadily and it gets richer. For two-thirds, conditions have deteriorated and it gets poorer.

Since 1959, world agricultural production has managed to keep up with the annual 2 per cent world population growth, but no more than keep up. There is little margin left, and where the need is greatest, the expansion of food production has been slower than the world average.

Experts estimate that by 1975 the world will need a 35 per cent increase in food production just to keep pace with present subsistence levels. Thus, man is like Wonderland's Alice on her treadmill, running faster and faster just to stay in one place. If the situation is to improve, the world will need, in reality, 50 per cent more food in a decade.

Dr. Binjay Ranjan Sen, director general of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, recently told the Royal Commonwealth Society in London that overpopulation is the root of the problem. Yet a country would not be consdiered overpopulated if it used its resources properly.

"With few exceptions there is not a country in the world which could not double and feed its population — if it had time," said Dr. Raymond Ewell, a food expert at the State University of New York in Buffalo.

But time is the big problem. India, for example, is likely to increase in population to 700 million in 15 years. She cannot possibly produce enough to feed 200 million extra mouths. Even the rich United States would have vast trouble nourishing 200 million added people.

Japan intensively cultivates the little land it has and gets enormous yields through efficient methods. India's land is inefficiently used.

Yet Japan is concerned about zooming population. It has increased 22 million since the end of World War II. She has no room for the prospective 15 million more which will be there by 1980 unless a birth control campaign which has been instituted in Japan applies a brake.

No figures are available for what has been happening in Communist China. It has had some improvement in production but not enough, probably, to keep step with population growth. Elsewhere in the East, food production has lagged.

Evidently Peking is concerned. t has called in Japanese family planning experts to examine the problem, an un-Marxist step. But China can see the light ahead only if her population stays at a level which can be sustained by her resources.

Chinese agriculture is hard pressed to keep step with population increases even now. In lean years of natural disaster, there were reports of famine. China has looked hungrily at other people's land, including even that of the Russians.

In the USSR and Eastern Europe, adverse weather and Communist bureaucracy have interfered with production. In Latin America, food production per person declines steadily as the population explodes at the world's highest rates. As population goes up, so does demand for food, adding a new threat — inflation.

Death control compounds the problem. Experts warn that there will be steadily more older and working-age people competing economically. Population increases thus can gobble up economic improvement and prevent progress against the overall problem.

Economic development is a key to food problems, but death control interferes. Egypt, for example, when it completes the Aswan Dam project, hopes to have millions more acres to cultivate. But the rise in population could cancel out new production.

Production has increased greatly in North America and developed areas. But even if the United States were to undertake feeding the whole hungry world — which theoretically it might be able to do — there would be enormous economic and social problems in the way.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts that food deficit regions will gain only slightly in the years immediately ahead and will be obliged to make up differences in imports. By 1970, the chances are that America will have to provide at least half the deficit, mostly from her own enormous surpluses.

Next: Brother or comrade.

The best way to avoid that run-down feeling is to cross the street at the intersection. Daily Dunklin Democrat

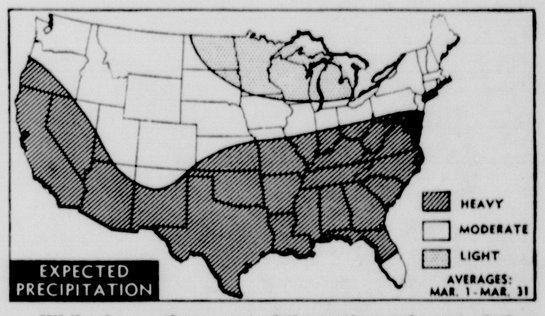
Unpleasant is the word to describe the country in March. Except for a belt running from coast to coast in the north, most temperatures will be below normal.



While the southern part of the nation and most of the Northwest receive heavy precipitation, the Northeast and part of the Midwest will see moderate dampness.

Mrs. Mills Heads Cadette Troop 22

Mrs. Joe Mills has been a true friend to Girl Scouting these past seven years. She has devoted six years to being a troop leader and one year a troop committee chairman. Besides taking the leaders' training course, she has helped in summer day camp with campcraft work. She is presently the leader of Cadette Troop #22.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills have three children, one daughter being a Cadette Scout. We say "thanks" to Mrs. Mills for her active interest in scouting these past seven years!

Unwanted Children Often Victims of Serious Abuse

When a three-month-old baby fractured its leg by wedging it between the slats of his crib, the doctor figured that it was an accident. When the same baby was brought to his office six weeks later with a fractured skull, and the parents claimed the baby injured itself by rolling off his bathinette, the doctor became suspicious. This baby seemed unusually accident prone.

He ordered X-rays of all of the tiny body. The X-rays told a shocking story. Several of the infant's bones had been fractured at different times, and were in varying stages of healing. This baby was not accident prone. He was a victim of one of the dread 'diseases' of infancy: the "battered child syndrome."

"Thousands of American children, perhaps as many as ten thousand, fall ill each year with this 'disease.' " This is the estimate given Women's Medical News Service by Vincent De Francis, Director of the Children's Division of the American Humane Society. The disease is caused not by a germ or a virus, but by adults, usually parents, he says, who reject their children and abuse them severely and repeatedly.

Most of the battered children, experts agree, are under five years of age. More than half of 662 abused youngsters studied by De Francis were under four years of age. Many were infants under one.

'REASONS' FOR ABUSE

For crying too much, for failing to become toilet - trained quickly enough, for other trivial reasons, little children are beaten until their bones break. One five-month-old infant was found to have more than 30 broken bones, others had severe burns, still others had their skulls fractured by violent blows.

Mr. De Francis reports that one in four children he studied died as the result of his injuries. Eighty percent of the fatally injured, he found, were under four; more than half under two. "Three out of four of all the children who died," said Mr. De Francis, "died at the hands of one or both parents."

A five-man medical team, headed by Dr. C. Henry Kempe, and which included pediatricians, a radiologist (X-ray specialist), an obstetrician - gynecologist, and a psychiatrist, found that of 302 abused children reported by 71 hospitals across the nation, more than one - third died or suffered permanent brain damage. Dr. Kempe is Professor of Pediatrics and Chairman of the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Colorado School of Medicine.

The physicians reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association,* "Not infrequently the beaten infant is a product of an unwanted pregnancy, a pregnancy which began before marriage, too soon after marriage, or at some other time felt to be extremely inconvenient."

They observed that some parents who batter their children "are immature, impulsive, self-centered hypersensitive, and quick to react with poorly controlled aggression."

Mr. De Francis affirmed that wider dissemination of birth control information might be an effective tool in the effort to reduce the incidence of "unwantedness" and therefore of the battered child syndrome.

According to Mr. De Francis, "Communities must become more aware of all the resources available to protect children and to help distressed families. Family planning agencies, children's protective services, family service societies, all can help prevent the horror of the battered child.

"Prevention is more vital than action taken after the damage has been done," he continued. "The kind of people who abuse their children are recognizable and treatable, if help and understanding are given them. They are not, usually, psychotic." A spokesman for the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, concurred in these views.

FAMILY BACKGROUND OF ABUSED CHILDREN

Abused children come from all kinds of homes, all kinds of racial and religious backgrounds. Some live in overcrowded filthy slums, some in well-tended middle-class homes. Their parents may barely be able to read or write, or may be college graduates holding well-paying, responsible jobs. Most often, the children live with both parents, and do not come from broken homes.

Mr. De Francis reports that the average age of the abusive mothers was 26, of the fathers 30. He and other experts find that the marriages are frequently unstable, and that often one or the other parent drinks excessively.

It's not uncommon for one child in such a family to be singled out for abuse while brothers and sisters are treated gently. Sometimes the abused child reminds a parent of a hated brother, sister, or parent; sometimes this is the child who was unwanted.

More than half the states have passed laws requiring doctors and institutions to report cases of child abuse to public authorities. Other states are considering such legislation.

The Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, alarmed by the rise in child abuse cases, has drawn up a model law to facilitate the work of state legislatures. Mandatory reporting and immunity from prosecution are the key elements in the Bureau's law.

Sometimes doctors and other medical personnel are granted immunity from civil or criminal action, to protect them from lawsuits arising from their action.

Where reporting is not mandatory, Mr. De Francis urges physicians treating abused children, and relatives and friends of such distressed families, to volunteer this information. He believes that the social service department of a hospital, public and private agencies concerned with child and family problems, and especially children's protective agencies, geared to move quickly in such cases, are the appropriate places to report instances of child abuse.

He ordered X-rays of all of the tiny body. The X-rays told a shocking story. Several of the infant's bones had been fractured at different times, and were in varying stages of healing. This baby was not accident prone. He was a victim of one of the dread 'diseases' of infancy; the "battered child syndrome."

"Thousands of American children, perhaps as many as ten thousand, fall ill each year with this 'disease.' " This is the estimate given Women's Medical News Service by Vincent De Francis, Director of the Children's Division of the American Humane Society. The disease is caused not by a germ or a virus, but by adults, usually parents, he says, who reject their children and abuse them severely and repeatedly.

Most of the battered children, experts agree, are under five years of age. More than half of 662 abused youngsters studied by De Francis were under four years of age. Many were infants under one.

'REASONS' FOR ABUSE

For crying too much, for failing to become toilet - trained quickly enough, for other trivial reasons, little children are beaten until their bones break. One five-month-old infant was found to have more than 30 broken bones, others had severe burns, still others had their skulls fractured by violent blows.

Mr. De Francis reports that one in four children he studied died as the result of his injuries. Eighty percent of the fatally injured, he found, were under four; more than half under two. "Three out of four of all the children who died," said Mr. De Francis, "died at the hands of one or both parents."

A five-man medical team, headed by Dr. C. Henry Kempe, and which included pediatricians, a radiologist (X-ray specialist), an obstetrician - gynecologist, and a psychiatrist, found that of 302 abused children reported by 71 hospitals across the nation, more than one - third died or suffered permanent brain damage. Dr. Kempe is Professor of Pediatrics and Chairman of the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Colorado School of Medicine.

The physicians reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association,* "Not infrequently the beaten infant is a product of an unwanted pregnancy, a pregnancy which began before marriage, too soon after marriage, or at some other time felt to be extremely inconvenient."

They observed that some parents who batter their children "are immature, impulsive, self-centered hypersensitive, and quick to react with poorly controlled aggression."

Mr. De Francis affirmed that wider dissemination of birth control information might be an effective tool in the effort to reduce the incidence of "unwantedness" and therefore of the battered child syndrome.

According to Mr. De Francis, "Communities must become more aware of all the resources available to protect children and to help distressed families. Family planning agencies, children's protective services, family service societies, all can help prevent the horror of the battered child.

"Prevention is more vital than action taken after the damage has been done," he continued. "The kind of people who abuse their children are recognizable and treatable, if help and understanding are given them. They are not, usually, psychotic." A spokesman for the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, concurred in these views.

FAMILY BACKGROUND OF ABUSED CHILDREN

Abused children come from all kinds of homes, all kinds of racial and religious backgrounds. Some live in overcrowded filthy slums, some in well-tended middle-class homes. Their parents may barely be able to read or write, or may be college graduates holding well-paying, responsible jobs. Most often, the children live with both parents, and do not come from broken homes.

Mr. De Francis reports that the average age of the abusive mothers was 26, of the fathers 30. He and other experts find that the marriages are frequently unstable, and that often one or the other parent drinks excessively.

It's not uncommon for one child in such a family to be singled out for abuse while brothers and sisters are treated gently. Sometimes the abused child reminds a parent of a hated brother, sister, or parent; sometimes this is the child who was unwanted.

More than half the states have passed laws requiring doctors and institutions to report cases of child abuse to public authorities. Other states are considering such legislation.

The Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, alarmed by the rise in child abuse cases, has drawn up a model law to facilitate the work of state legislatures. Mandatory reporting and immunity from prosecution are the key elements in the Bureau's law.

Sometimes doctors and other medical personnel are granted immunity from civil or criminal action, to protect them from lawsuits arising from their action.

Where reporting is not mandatory, Mr. De Francis urges physicians treating abused children, and relatives and friends of such distressed families, to volunteer this information. He believes that the social service department of a hospital, public and private agencies concerned with child and family problems, and especially children's protective agencies, geared to move quickly in such cases, are the appropriate places to report instances of child abuse.

Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be chosen for any one office will invalidate this ballot.

Section 11: The City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each polling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last municipal election. The persons who are qualified to vote at the general election shall be qualified to vote at such primary election, and challenges cannot be made by more than two persons, to be appointed at the time of opening the polls by the judges of election; and the law applicable to challenges at a general election shall be applicable to challenges made at such primary election except as to the number. Judges of the election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by said Clerk, within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said primary election the Council shall canvass said returns so received from all the polling precincts, and shall make and publish the result thereof in the Daily Sikeston Standard. Such canvass by the Council shall be publicly made, and the names of candidates receiving the highest number of votes for councilman, equal to twice the number to be elected, if there be so many running, shall be placed upon the official ballot for councilman at such general election.

Section 12: The primary election shall not be required if upon the expiration of the time for filing of statements with the City Clerk of persons desiring to become a candidate for councilman, the number of such persons shall not exceed a number equal to twice the number to be elected at the general election. Within forty-eight hours after the expiration of the time for filing of such statements with the City Clerk, the council shall canvass the statements filed to determine from the number of statements filed whether this section shall be applicable. In the event that it is determined that the provisions shall be applicable, the council shall, by ordnance, provide that a primary election shall not be held and that the names of the persons filing statements shall be printed on the general election ballots as the nominees for councilman, provided, however, that the name of such persons appearing on such ballot shall appear thereon in the order that they were filed with the City Clerk.

Section 13: The City Clerk shall thereupon cause the official ballots to be printed, and upon the said ballots the names of the candidates shall be arranged in the order of their vote received at the primary election, and above the names of the candidates shall appear the words "Vote for (number to be elected) -- scratch all others". The ballot shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper and shall have no party designation or mark whatever. The ballots shall be in substantially the following form:

Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be elected to any office will invalidate this ballot.

Having caused said ballots to be printed, the City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each voting place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last general municipal election.

Section 14: Each of the nominees for Councilman may appoint a challenger. Judges of election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make the return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by the said Clerk within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said election, the Council shall canvass said returns so received from the polling precincts and declare the result; and the two candidates receiving the first and second highest number of votes for Councilman, shall be declared duly elected Councilman.

I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hit. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. (Psalm 32:5)

PRAYER: We are grateful, O Lord, for the wonder of forgiven sin. We pray that our sins in thought, word and deed may lead us to true repentance, which makes us receptive and grateful for Thy grace. In the Savior's name we pray. Amen.

When John D. Rockefeller, Sr., learned that his family planned a surprise birthday gift —a $6000 electric automobile in which he could drive around his estate — he told his well-meaning relatives, "If it's all the same with you, I'd rather you gave me the money." — Henry Minott

MRS. JOHN WALTON, left, assisted by Mrs. Mattie Speed, left, leads Junior Troop #139. She has been their leader for the past two years.

Mrs. John Walton Leads Jr. Troop

Mrs. John Walton has been associated with Girl Scouting for the past two years as leader of Junior Troop #139. Mrs. Walton and her husband, who is engaged in farming, have two children and have been most active in their church work, P. T. A. and Girl Scouting. Mrs. Walton has taken leaders' training to qualify her leadership. The Waltons are members of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Mattie Speed has served as the assistant leader of Troop #139 for the past two years. She not only has given much of her time and effort to scouting, but to all youth in her community. Mrs. Speed holds an A. B. degree from Arkansas State College, having done some graduate work. She has taught in the Big Ridge School for the past nine years. She has given twenty years service as a 4-H Club leader and been director of the youth in the Methodist Church for the past fifteen years, as well as serving as superintendent. Mrs. Speed is to be commended for the interest in the youth of today.

Mrs. Leana Bennett has also assisted with Troop #139 for the past two years but was unable to be present when the above picture was taken. She, too, has been very active in helping with this troop.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I would deeply appreciate it if you would print this in your Letters to the Editor column.

This is in regard to the Standard's article last week by Thomza Zimmerman, concerning the Advance "Hornets".

In his letter he spoke of Mr. Whittle trying to get publicity for himself, what pray tell was Mr. Zimmerman attempting to do. He must also be a very unhappy and frustrated person.

He stated that he had played basketball when he was in high school and had played just as hard then to win as the players do now. He sure must have played a very hard and bloody game. He stated it is no crime in losing, or winning, then why did the Advance Hornets play for blood in one of the dirtiest games I have seen in ages? I will not even state the name of the team they were playing, because it is plain to see which one it was. He stated that short-sighted fans and bird-brained sports writers cause most of the trouble. Well, how about it when some of the players deliberately start kicking and knocking around other players? It is also degrading when cheerleaders mock and try to ridicule another team's cheerleaders when they are trying to do a yell in support of their team!

What kind of living is that? It is living that is brought on by people who want to win, no matter what the means of winning may be. This I agree is uncalled for. Something should be done to protect the ballplayers, but from what, the other team? It seems to me that some schools should attempt to learn a little about fair play and being good sports.

Sincerely yours,
Not an Advance fan.
Beatrice Brinker

When arrangements were being made for painting the portrait of Grace Coolidge which hangs in the China Room of the White House, the artist, Howard Chandler Christy, suggested that she wear a red dress to contrast with her white collie, Rob Roy. But President Coolidge held out for a white brocaded satin gown that he greatly liked, saying with a solemn air, "She could wear the white dress and we'd dye the dog." — Ishbel Ross

Uncle Barnfeathers isn't certain that the race to the moon can be justified because of the high cost but he doesn't know either what the economic consequences would be from dropping out. — Paul Bumbarger

Seat belts can reduce severe injuries by one-third a year!

And, if every car owner in America had seat belts in his car and used them, we could reduce auto deaths by 5,000 a year!

The picture shows how a seat belt can make the critical difference between health and injury—or life and death—for your child. Or for you.

The distance between the child's head and the dash, windshield or car roof is the critical distance for him every time he rides in the car. A sudden panic stop—even when the car is going slowly—or a collision can hurdle him through that short distance with brutal force . . . unless he is held in his seat by a seat belt like the boy in the picture.

Remember: Drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease! Seat belts can save more of these children than any method!

So drive with loving care, and protect your loved ones, and yourself, with seat belts.

I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hit. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. (Psalm 32:5)

PRAYER: We are grateful, O Lord, for the wonder of forgiven sin. We pray that our sins in thought, word and deed may lead us to true repentance, which makes us receptive and grateful for Thy grace. In the Savior's name we pray. Amen.

Mrs. John Walton Leads Jr. Troop

Mrs. John Walton has been associated with Girl Scouting for the past two years as leader of Junior Troop #139. Mrs. Walton and her husband, who is engaged in farming, have two children and have been most active in their church work, P. T. A. and Girl Scouting. Mrs. Walton has taken leaders' training to qualify her leadership. The Waltons are members of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Mattie Speed has served as the assistant leader of Troop #139 for the past two years. She not only has given much of her time and effort to scouting, but to all youth in her community. Mrs. Speed holds an A. B. degree from Arkansas State College, having done some graduate work. She has taught in the Big Ridge School for the past nine years. She has given twenty years service as a 4-H Club leader and been director of the youth in the Methodist Church for the past fifteen years, as well as serving as superintendent. Mrs. Speed is to be commended for the interest in the youth of today.

Mrs. Leana Bennett has also assisted with Troop #139 for the past two years but was unable to be present when the above picture was taken. She, too, has been very active in helping with this troop.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I would deeply appreciate it if you would print this in your Letters to the Editor column.

This is in regard to the Standard's article last week by Thomza Zimmerman, concerning the Advance "Hornets".

In his letter he spoke of Mr. Whittle trying to get publicity for himself, what pray tell was Mr. Zimmerman attempting to do. He must also be a very unhappy and frustrated person.

He stated that he had played basketball when he was in high school and had played just as hard then to win as the players do now. He sure must have played a very hard and bloody game. He stated it is no crime in losing, or winning, then why did the Advance Hornets play for blood in one of the dirtiest games I have seen in ages? I will not even state the name of the team they were playing, because it is plain to see which one it was. He stated that short-sighted fans and bird-brained sports writers cause most of the trouble. Well, how about it when some of the players deliberately start kicking and knocking around other players? It is also degrading when cheerleaders mock and try to ridicule another team's cheerleaders when they are trying to do a yell in support of their team!

What kind of living is that? It is living that is brought on by people who want to win, no matter what the means of winning may be. This I agree is uncalled for. Something should be done to protect the ballplayers, but from what, the other team? It seems to me that some schools should attempt to learn a little about fair play and being good sports.

Sincerely yours,
Not an Advance fan.

When arrangements were being made for painting the portrait of Grace Coolidge which hangs in the China Room of the White House, the artist, Howard Chandler Christy, suggested that she wear a red dress to contrast with her white collie, Rob Roy. But President Coolidge held out for a white brocaded satin gown that he greatly liked, saying with a solemn air, "She could wear the white dress and we'd dye the dog." — Ishbel Ross

Seat belts can reduce severe injuries by one-third a year!

And, if every car owner in America had seat belts in his car and used them, we could reduce auto deaths by 5,000 a year!

The picture shows how a seat belt can make the critical difference between health and injury—or life and death—for your child. Or for you.

The distance between the child's head and the dash, windshield or car roof is the critical distance for him every time he rides in the car. A sudden panic stop—even when the car is going slowly—or a collision can hurdle him through that short distance with brutal force . . . unless he is held in his seat by a seat belt like the boy in the picture.

Remember: Drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease! Seat belts can save more of these children than any method!

So drive with loving care, and protect your loved ones, and yourself, with seat belts.

OUR ANCESTORS

"Boy, they were the fastest horse thieves I've ever seen operate!"

Lightest Mexico

Prof. Melendez says this is to warn everybody about the perils of our modern age and to keep people on their toes. After ten years of studying bacteria in foreign lands he is now advising everyone to live in germ-proof bags, breathe sterilized air and quit kissing girls.

The rest of the neighborhood thinks the professor was a lot better off (and people slept later) before he began squinting through microscopes and picking up outside ideas from professional researchers.

He warns that a man cannot tie his shoes these days without risking a coronary thrombosis or going batty. And after a lengthy hassel with him over what happens to smokers, I was about to toss away my cigars and take up grapevine again.

Then he came along with a report that air can cause lung cancer so I had to go on record as refusing to give up breathing.

Now the professor is expounding on the hazards of cosmetics and says he has found something in female war paint that's extremely deadly.

Professor, it's only the way they use it and that menace has long been known to mankind.

He adds, however, that while lipstick made his laboratory rats mighty sick folks he isn't quite sure of its effects on human beings and at this point I can make my contribution to science.

For your information, senor, I smooched a lady right on her lipstick 30 years ago and I have suffered no setbacks in health. I trust this inspired bit of research will speed up things and snap your mice out of whatever ails them.

So another medical friend of mine here was saying the other day that if all bugs are killed off, he'll be out of a job. And he added that he is in favor of people and said it is the delving into the mysteries of organisms that has increased our life span by many a year. This sounds like a conspiracy with the revenue people who want to keep you around longer to pay taxes but my pocketbook already has a severe case of anemia and it's high time the scientists work out a cure for that.

What puzzles me is the way humanity has survived this complicated swarm of invisible bugs and bacteria that now threaten us with extinction. The professor says part of it is due to abysmal ignorance because the old timers, unaware of any perils except old age and accidents, just kept on living.

But Prof. Melendez, a sceptic by nature since he is a scientist, feels the race has a chance even though everyone in the neighborhood (especially the ladies) is furious at him. They are convinced the head-shrinkers and contemplaters of monkeys with whooping cough will steer us to the point of international inertia.

Now the professor predicts the age of pills will get us properly purified so we can stay in bed 24 hours a day on a menu something like this: Aspirin soup, antibiotic salad, sulfaguanidine souffle, atabrine tea and for dessert, a warm enema.

Fair enough. But I mean to have my fling before the microbes do me in even if I have to let the Lady from Puebla play the Anvil Chorus on her steam calliope right after the 4 a.m. cannon shot.

The professor holds back a little at this threat because he says it would keep his rats in a permanent state of shock and shatter his windows.

A hearing on legislation to this effect, set for Monday night before the House Committee on Local Government, was called off by Chairman G. Stafford Owen, D-DeKalb County.

Owen said he was told by the sponsor of a bill eliminating double taxation that the measure was being dropped. The sponsor was Rep. George H. Pace, D-Marion County.

Defeated bond issues could not be resubmitted to voters for 12 months under a proposed constitutional amendment approved Tuesday night by a legislative committee.

The House Committee on Constitutional amendments okayed the measure by a 4-2 vote after hearing arguments from opponents of the bill. Supporters were heard in an earlier meeting.

The amendment would prohibit political subdivisions in Missouri from resubmitting for a year any bond issue not approved by voters in the original bond election.

John Fitzgerald, former representative from Jackson County, said the measure would "tie the hands of industrial development in the state." Cities, he said, would have a harder time obtaining funds to lure industries.

Fitzgerald pointed out that a series of bonds recently passed in Kansas City were defeated in the first election.

It is difficult to pass bond issues in Missouri, he said, since passage requires a two-third or four-sevenths majority, depending on the type of bond involved.

Proponents of the amendment have argued that political subdivisions at present can resubmit bond issues as often as they want.

The practice of submitting the same bond issue many times, they say, has been followed by some school districts that have trouble obtaining a two-thirds majority.

On trips to his Southern steel mills, Andrew Carnegie often chose to attend Sunday services at the nearest Negro church. On one trip he was so impressed with the sermon and the preacher that he put a larger than usual contribution in the plate. After counting and recounting the collection, the preacher surveyed his congregation and announced, "This morning we have in the collection $2.31. But if the bill put in by the gentleman sitting in the rear by the door is genuine, we have $102.31." — Davis Barnett.

Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island was visiting his state's former Sen. Theodore F. Green during Green's critical illness in a Providence hospital. Midway in the conversation the 94-year-old Green (who retired from the Senate last year) shouted at Pastore, "Turn on the TV quick!" The program proved to be the local news, which ended with a bulletin on the condition of ex-Senator Green. "This," he explained, "is the only way I can find out how I feel. The doctors just give me a lot of double-talk — and don't you tell them about this."

Green finally heard one bulletin on TV that was so good he climbed out of bed and went home. — George Dixon

Easing Morning Sickness
New Clue to Infertility
Measures Can Help Avoid Strokes
Dr. Talk

By Elizabeth Stewart
Women's Medical News Service

One of the most common discomforts of pregnancy is nausea, sometimes called "morning sickness." Experts estimate that about half of all pregnant women experience nausea for varying periods. Usually it occurs during the first three months of pregnancy, then disappears. Despite its nickname, it may occur at any time of day or night.

Since nausea often can be overcome by intake of foods high in carbohydrates, doctors frequently advise their patients to have as many as five or six small snacks of a cookie or crackers with jelly a day. If nausea is severe and persists, the doctor may prescribe a drug.

However, pregnant women should take drugs ONLY when prescribed by a physician.

Infertility -- the inability to conceive children -- is a stubborn and often heartbreaking condition which is slowly yielding its secrets to medical scientists.

Doctors Robert Franklin, M. D., and C. Dean Dukes, Ph.D., of Baylor University, College of Medicine, Houston, Texas, recently reported finding a new clue to unexplained infertility. After careful clinical tests, they established that some women ate temporarily immune to their husband's sperm. Their systems build up antibodies which make the sperm ineffective.

The scientists reasoned that these antibodies would disappear in time if not stimulated. They suggested to 13 couples that for specified lengths of time they not have marital relations in which the sperm might stimulate the further development of antibodies.

The antibodies declined markedly in all 13 women, and dropped to undetectable levels in 10. Nine of the 10 became pregnant when they resumed marital relations at the time of expected ovulation.

Strokes are the nation's number three killer, after heart disease and cancer. No respecter of age or sex, strokes strike suddenly, often with devastating effects. Now, says Dr. Paul Dudley White, one of the nation's best known heart specialists, many candidates for strokes can be identified by their physicians and preventive measures taken.

Young people whose mothers or fathers have had strokes should guard against excessive weight, smoke little or not at all (since smoking increases blood pressure), and should be physically active.

Physicians, advises Dr. White, should record certain basic information about such patients: blood pressure, electrocardiogram, heart and lung x-ray, blood cholesterol, and fasting blood sugar. From time to time this data should be updated and studied for any significant change.

USING TALENTS OF THE RETIRED

(From the Orlando, (Fla.) Sentinel)

The Small Business Administration has just organized a new army of volunteers who will undoubtedly prove of incalculable value to businesses in trouble. Known as S.C.O.R.E. (Service Corps of Retired Executives) the army is composed of 1,100 retired executives of national stature. They will serve without pay and will be assigned cases in or near their hometowns.

Among the millions of retirees in the United States there is a great wealth of knowledgeable talent in business, science, industry. S.C.O.R.E. will utilize this now wasted talent by assigning its members to business and industry for advice in handling specific problems, and and to help businessmen avoid some of the pitfalls one learns only by experience.

This is a highly worthy endeavor, not only for the businesses which will profit from the storehouse of knowledge these men have, but also for the retirees. The satisfaction of challenge and accomplishment is one of the basic needs of the retired.

STATE

A hearing on legislation to this effect, set for Monday night before the House Committee on Local Government, was called off by Chairman G. Stafford Owen, D-DeKalb County.

Owen said he was told by the sponsor of a bill eliminating double taxation that the measure was being dropped. The sponsor was Rep. George H. Pace, D-Marion County.

Defeated bond issues could not be resubmitted to voters for 12 months under a proposed constitutional amendment approved Tuesday night by a legislative committee.

The House Committee on Constitutional amendments okayed the measure by a 4-2 vote after hearing arguments from opponents of the bill. Supporters were heard in an earlier meeting.

The amendment would prohibit political subdivisions in Missouri from resubmitting for a year any bond issue not approved by voters in the original bond election.

John Fitzgerald, former representative from Jackson County, said the measure would "tie the hands of industrial development in the state." Cities, he said, would have a harder time obtaining funds to lure industries.

Fitzgerald pointed out that a series of bonds recently passed in Kansas City were defeated in the first election.

It is difficult to pass bond issues in Missouri, he said, since passage requires a two-third or four-sevenths majority, depending on the type of bond involved.

Proponents of the amendment have argued that political subdivisions at present can resubmit bond issues as often as they want.

The practice of submitting the same bond issue many times, they say, has been followed by some school districts that have trouble obtaining a two-thirds majority.

On trips to his Southern steel mills, Andrew Carnegie often chose to attend Sunday services at the nearest Negro church. On one trip he was so impressed with the sermon and the preacher that he put a larger than usual contribution in the plate. After counting and recounting the collection, the preacher surveyed his congregation and announced, "This morning we have in the collection $2.31. But if the bill put in by the gentleman sitting in the rear by the door is genuine, we have $102.31." — Davis Barnett.
